The CLIFFVIEW

This low, rambling style of bungalow makes it a model summer home. The design shows somewhat of the pioneer character that has become so much desired in recent years. As for the plan, here, too, is economy, matched with fine proportions and usefulness of space.

This design has much to recommend it. Note the built-in breakfast nook and kitchen cabinet and the kitchen with a pantry to serve it. The living room is spacious with a guest closet set off in a back corner and space for a fireplace has been left to complete its coziness. There are four corner bedrooms, each with a closet and space for bath or storage in between each bedroom. A 24-foot full screened porch completes this extensive floor plan and the conveniences of this design.

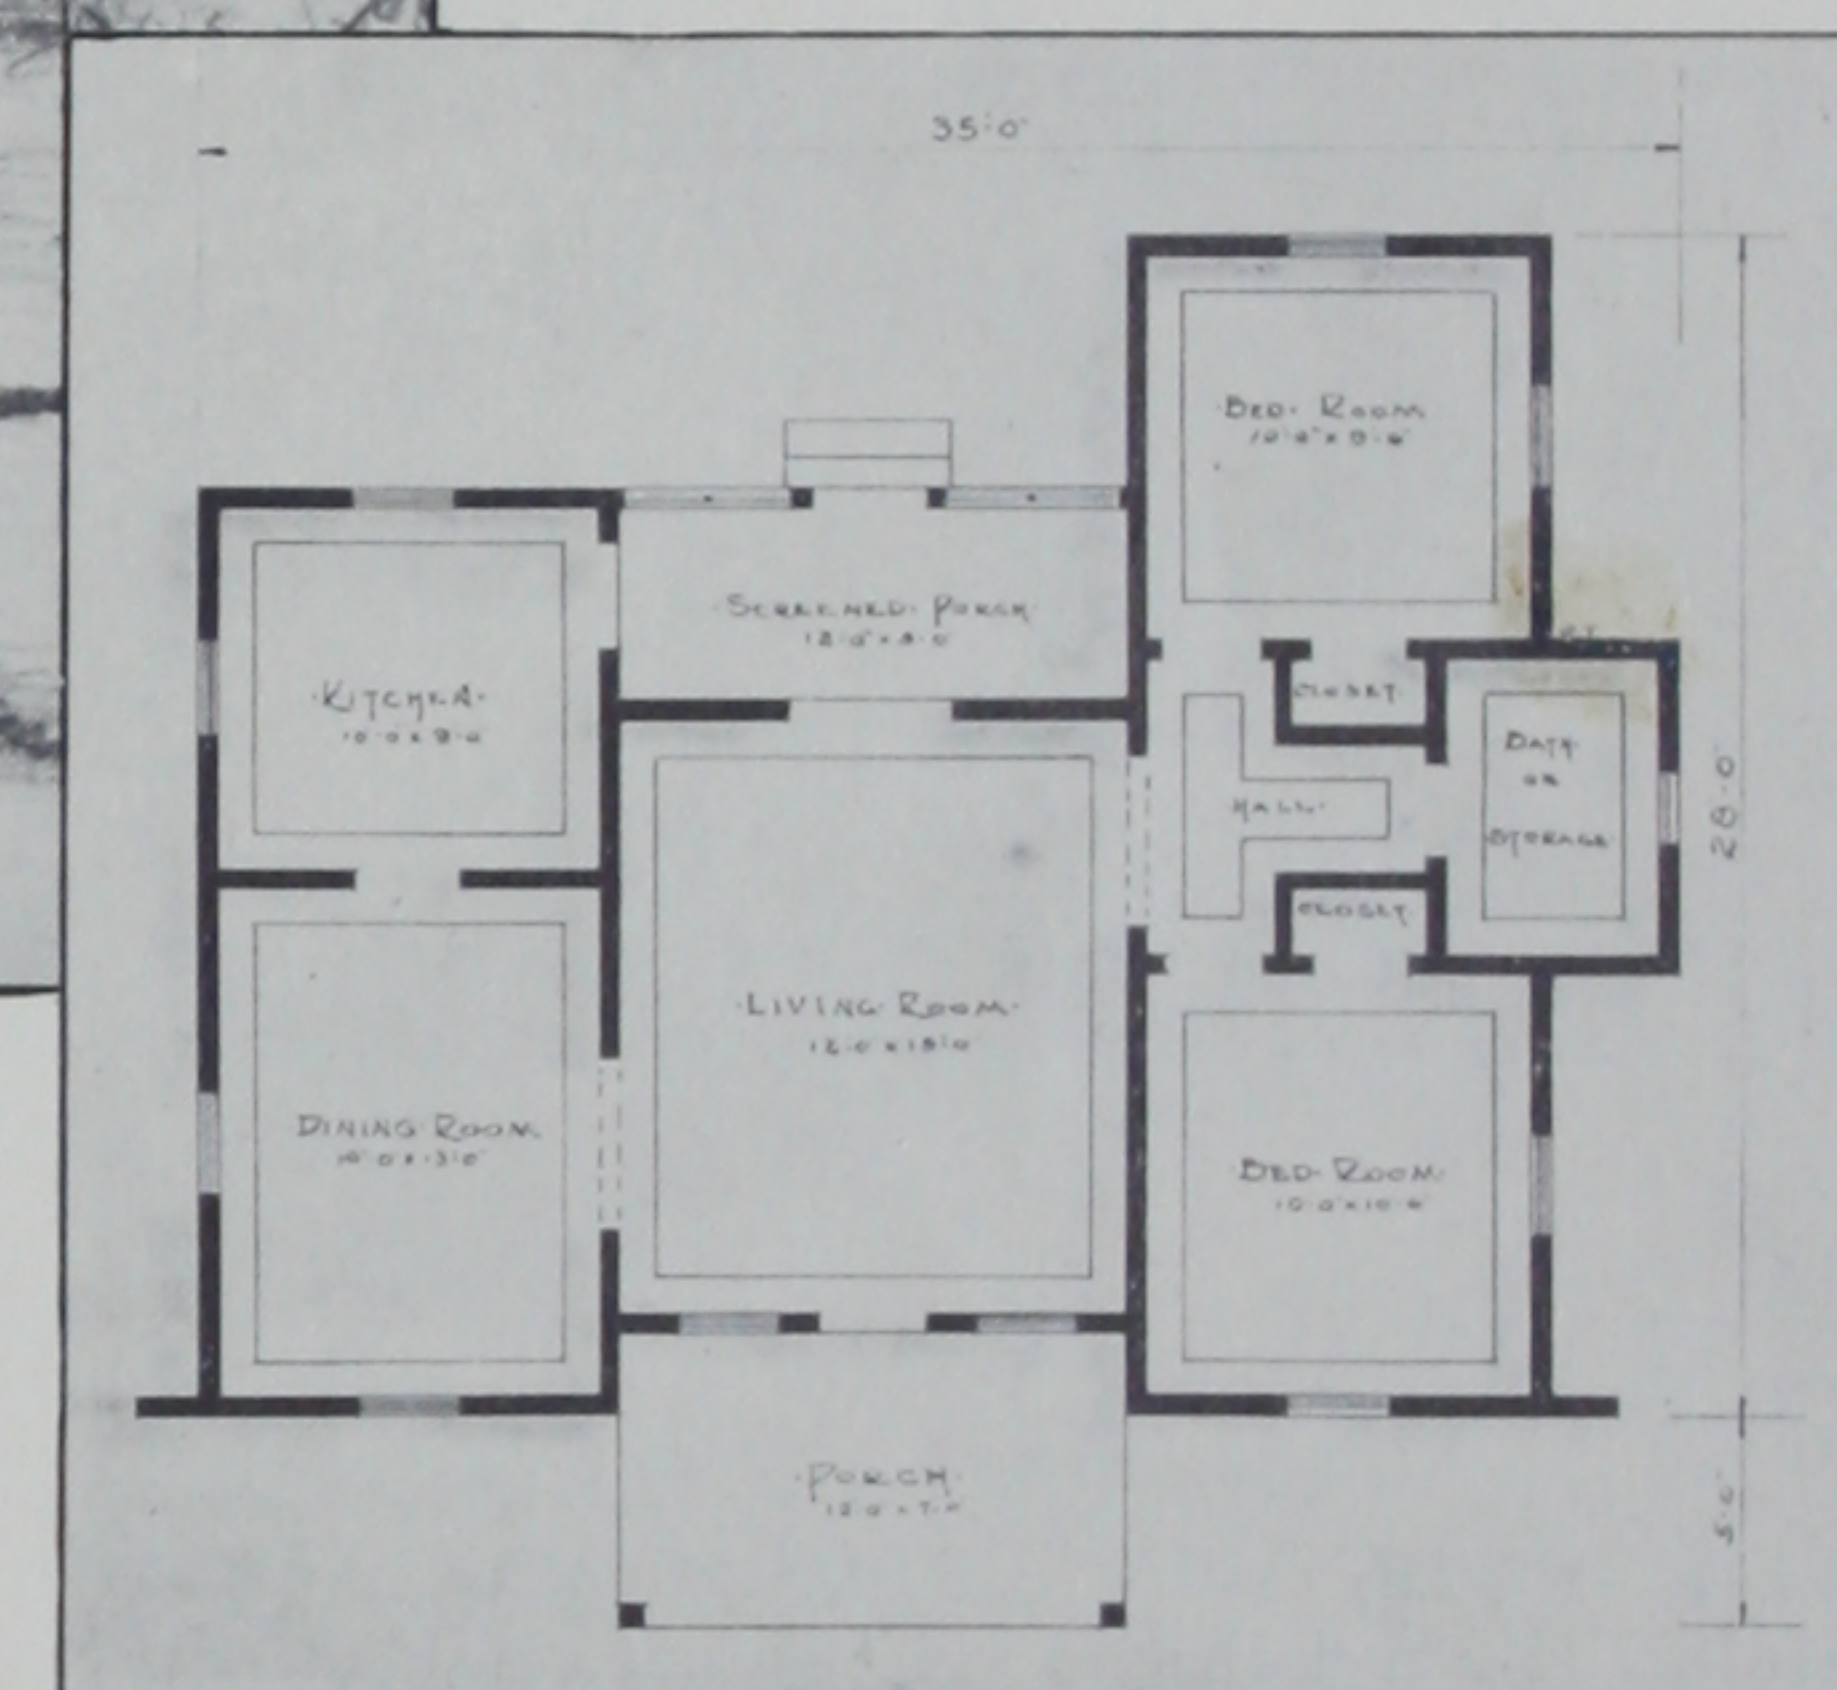

HARRIS BROTHERS COMPANY

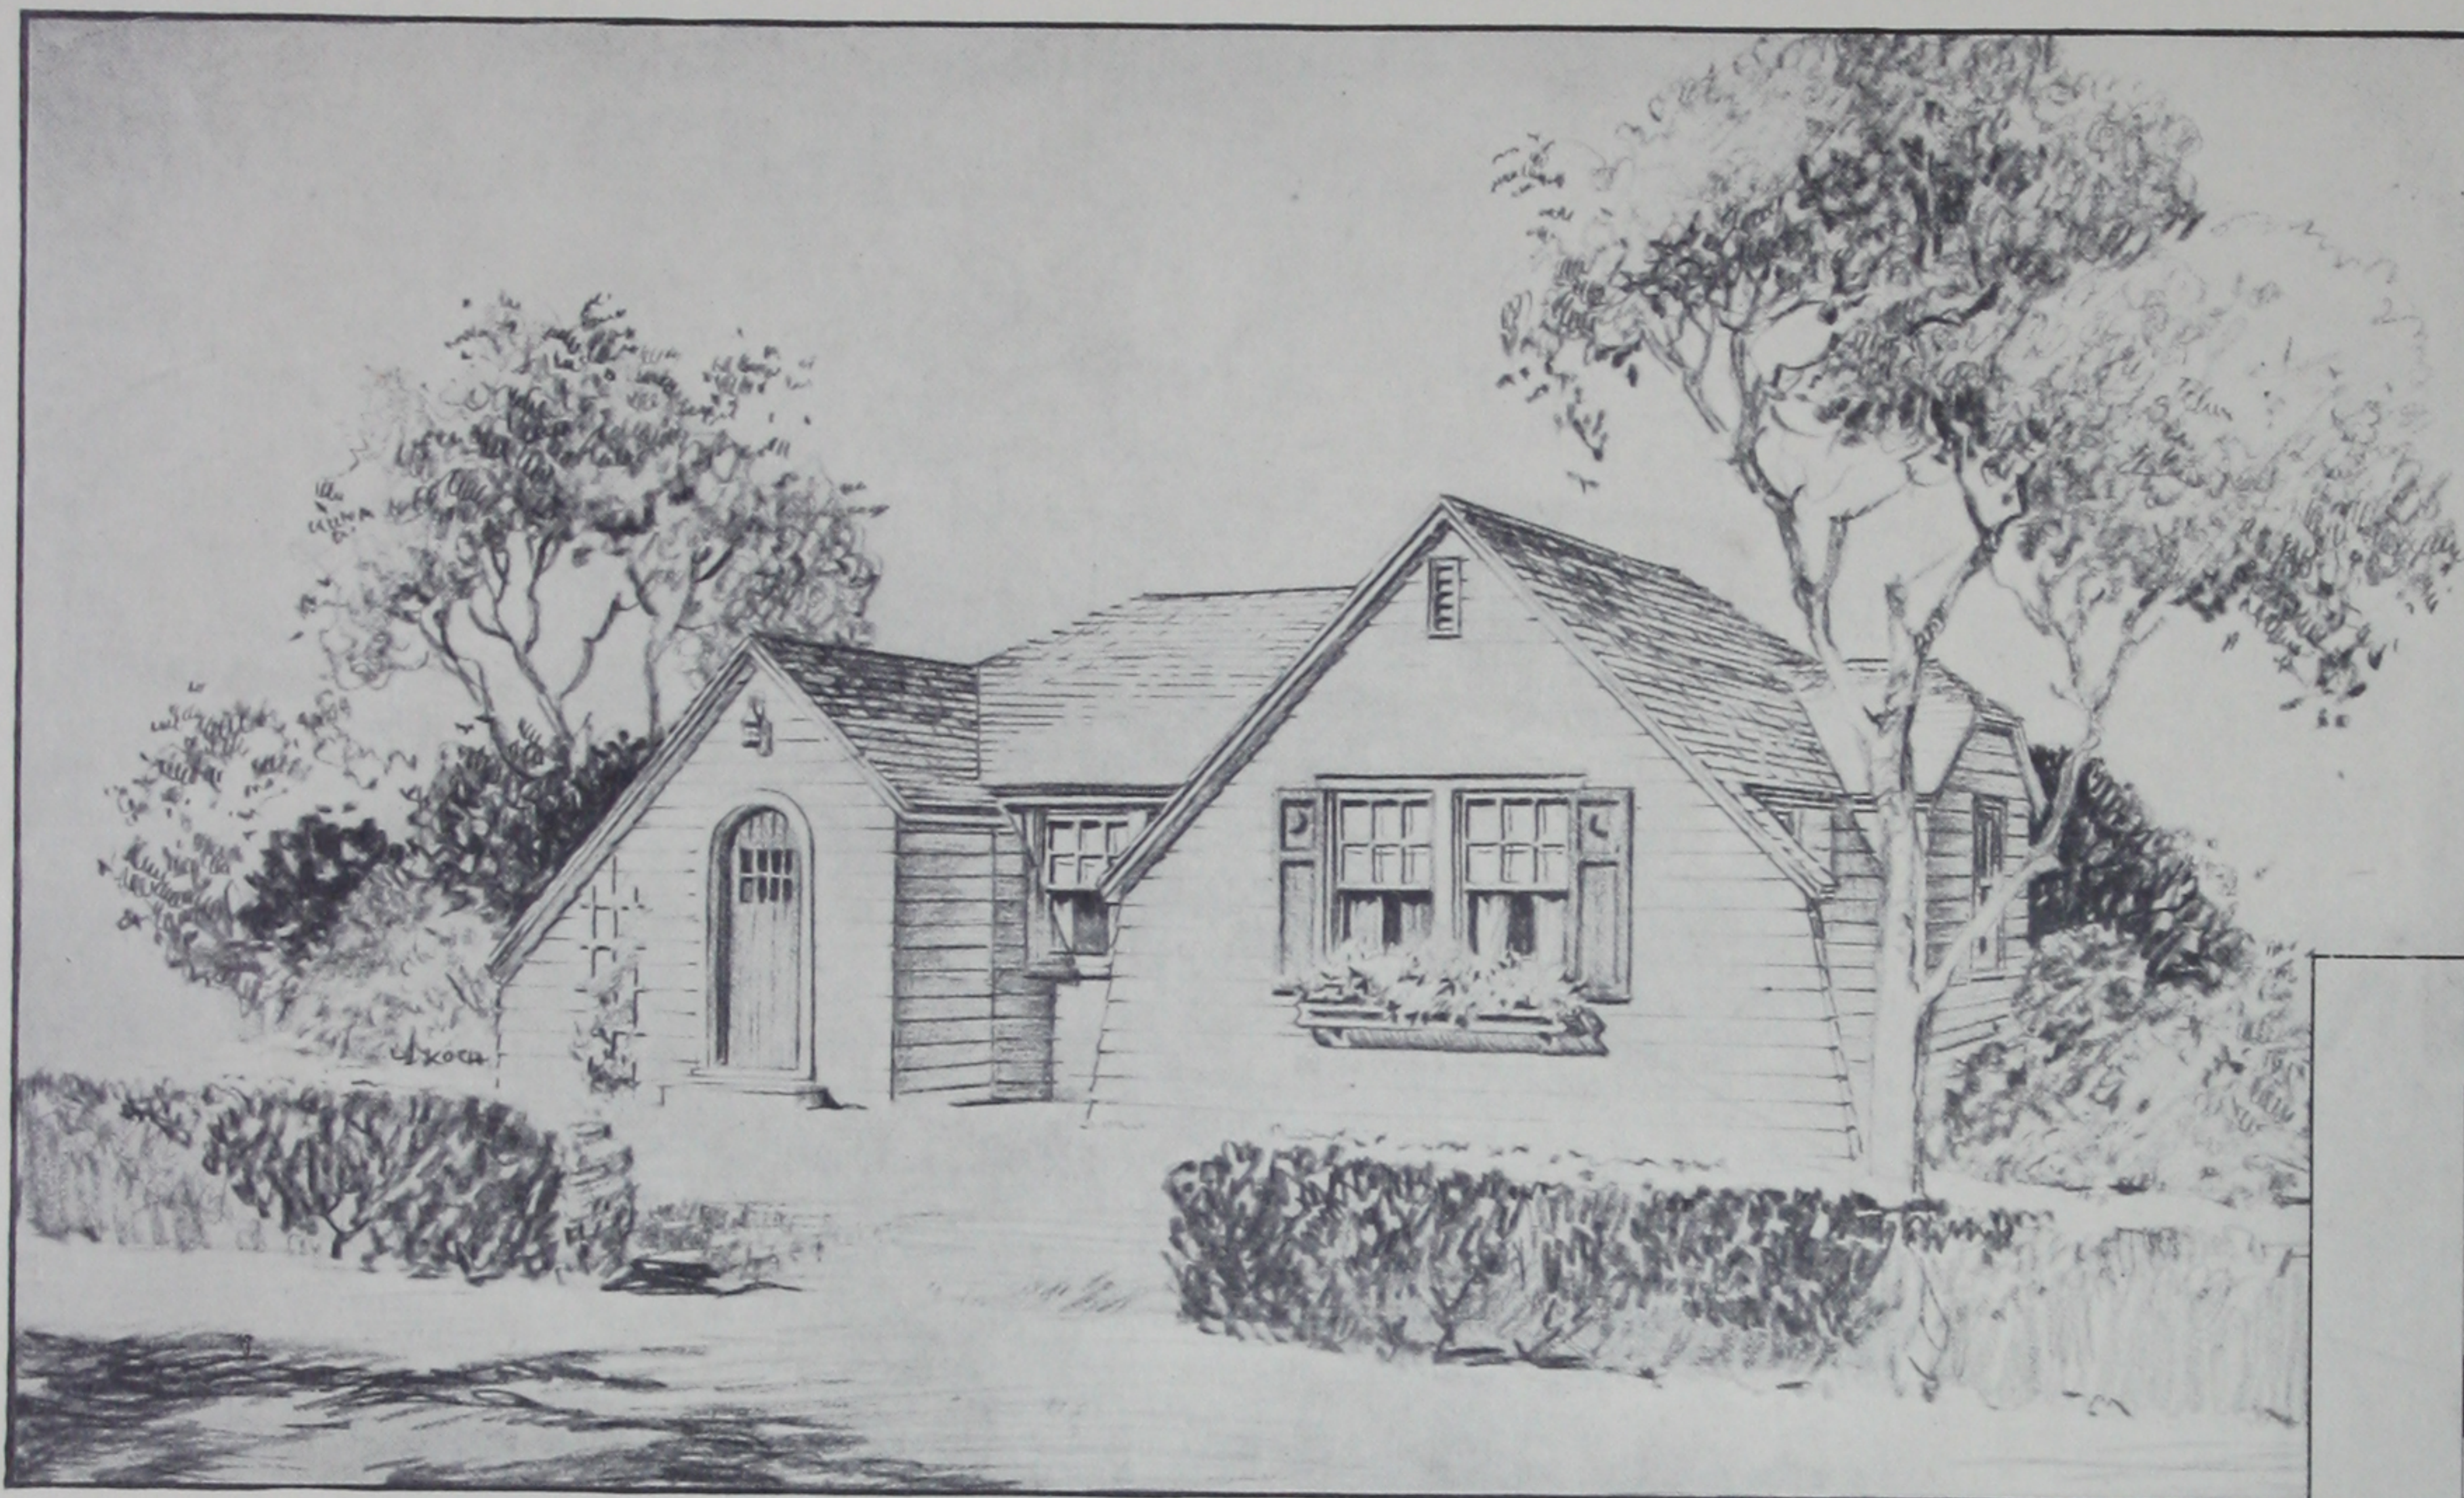

The CHARLAINE

The Charlaine is a masterpiece in designing, so graceful and finely proportioned that the most casual observer cannot fail to notice it. Besides providing its full quota of comforts and convenience it has a delightful homelike charm. One of the fine things about this design is that you can face it as you desire. Porches both front and rear lead completely through, with the living room extending full length in between.

This plan is compact but in every way allows full benefit of all space. The living room is generously proportioned and faces an open porch on the front and a screened porch in the rear. The kitchen and dining room are convenient and well arranged. There are two bedrooms, each with two large windows and ample closets provided. Space for bath or storage makes this floor plan complete in every detail.

The SHERWOOD

The Sherwood is a house of many gables with long sweeping angular lines. The entrance, the windows, the chimney, the gables, are all so designed and so well combined that the whole is extremely pleasing. In this bungalow our architects have adapted some of the features of the most costly summer homes.

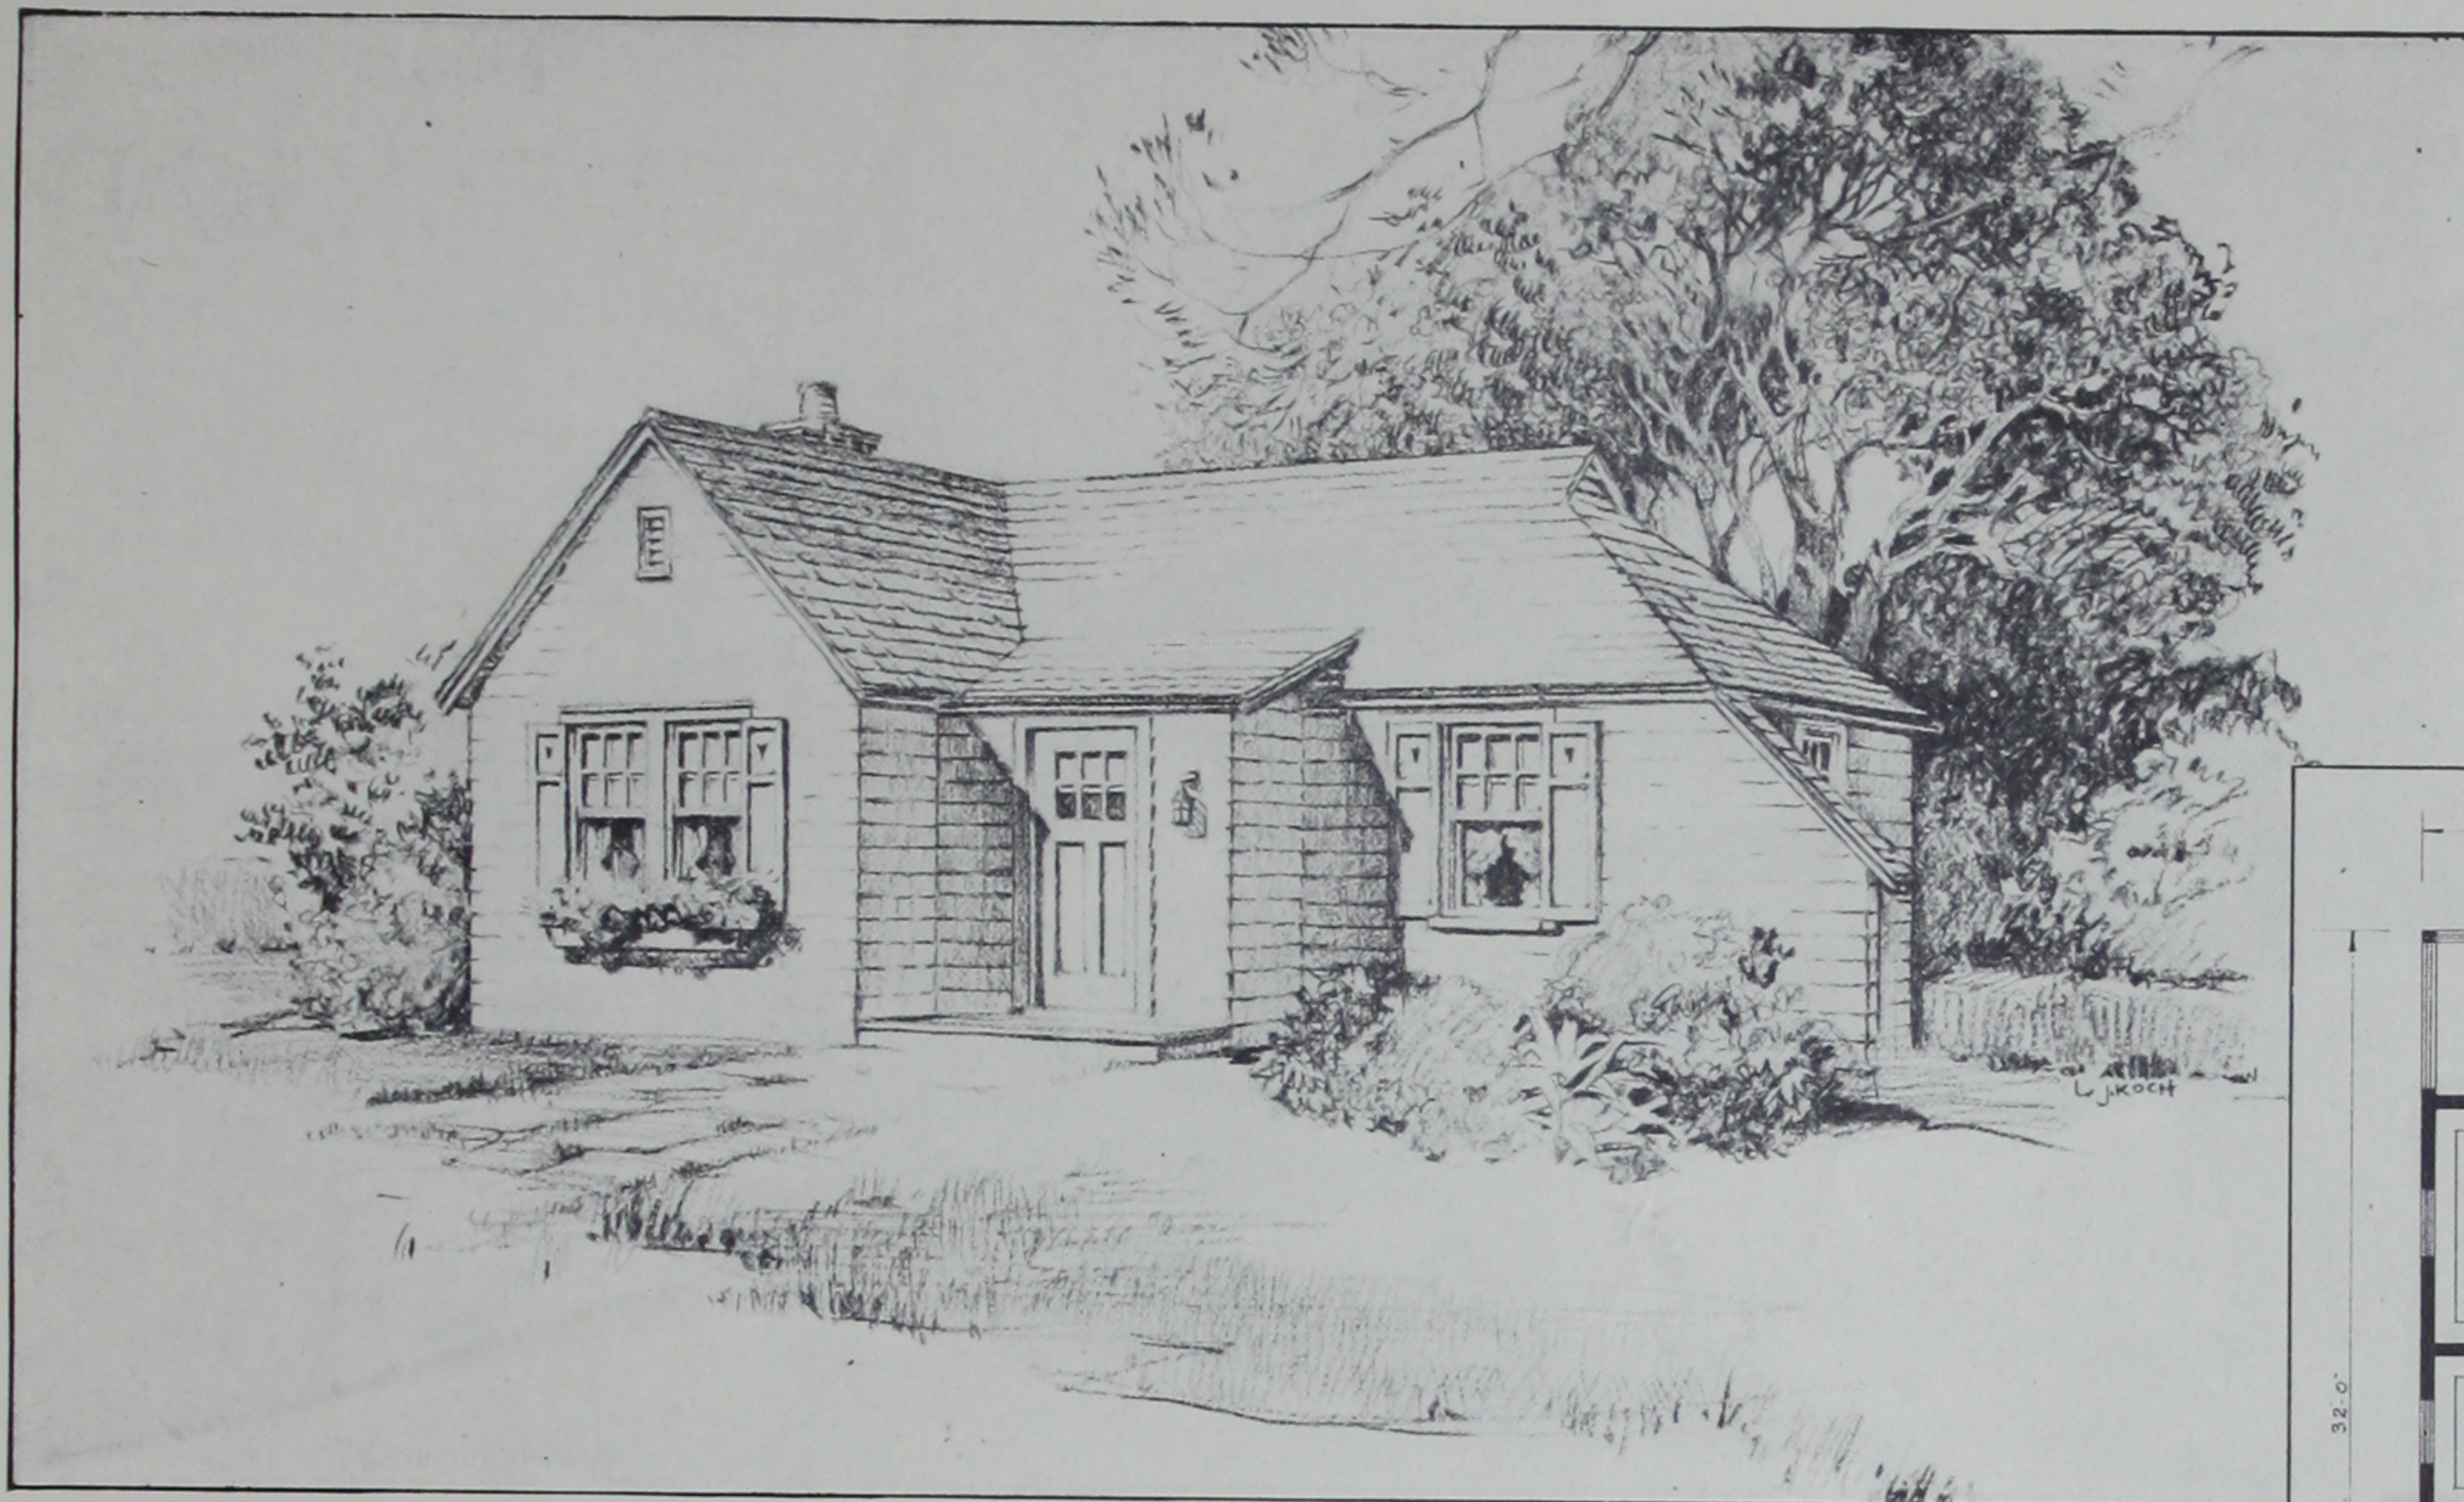

There is a beautiful living room with fine lighting as the result of grouped windows on two sides. In addition its wall spaces provide place for all required furniture. The artistic circle head front entrance door opens into a vestibule and guest closet. Two large bedrooms, a kitchen, space for bath or storage and ample closets provide an interesting interior. An 11-foot porch is accessible from the living room.

The SHELBOURN

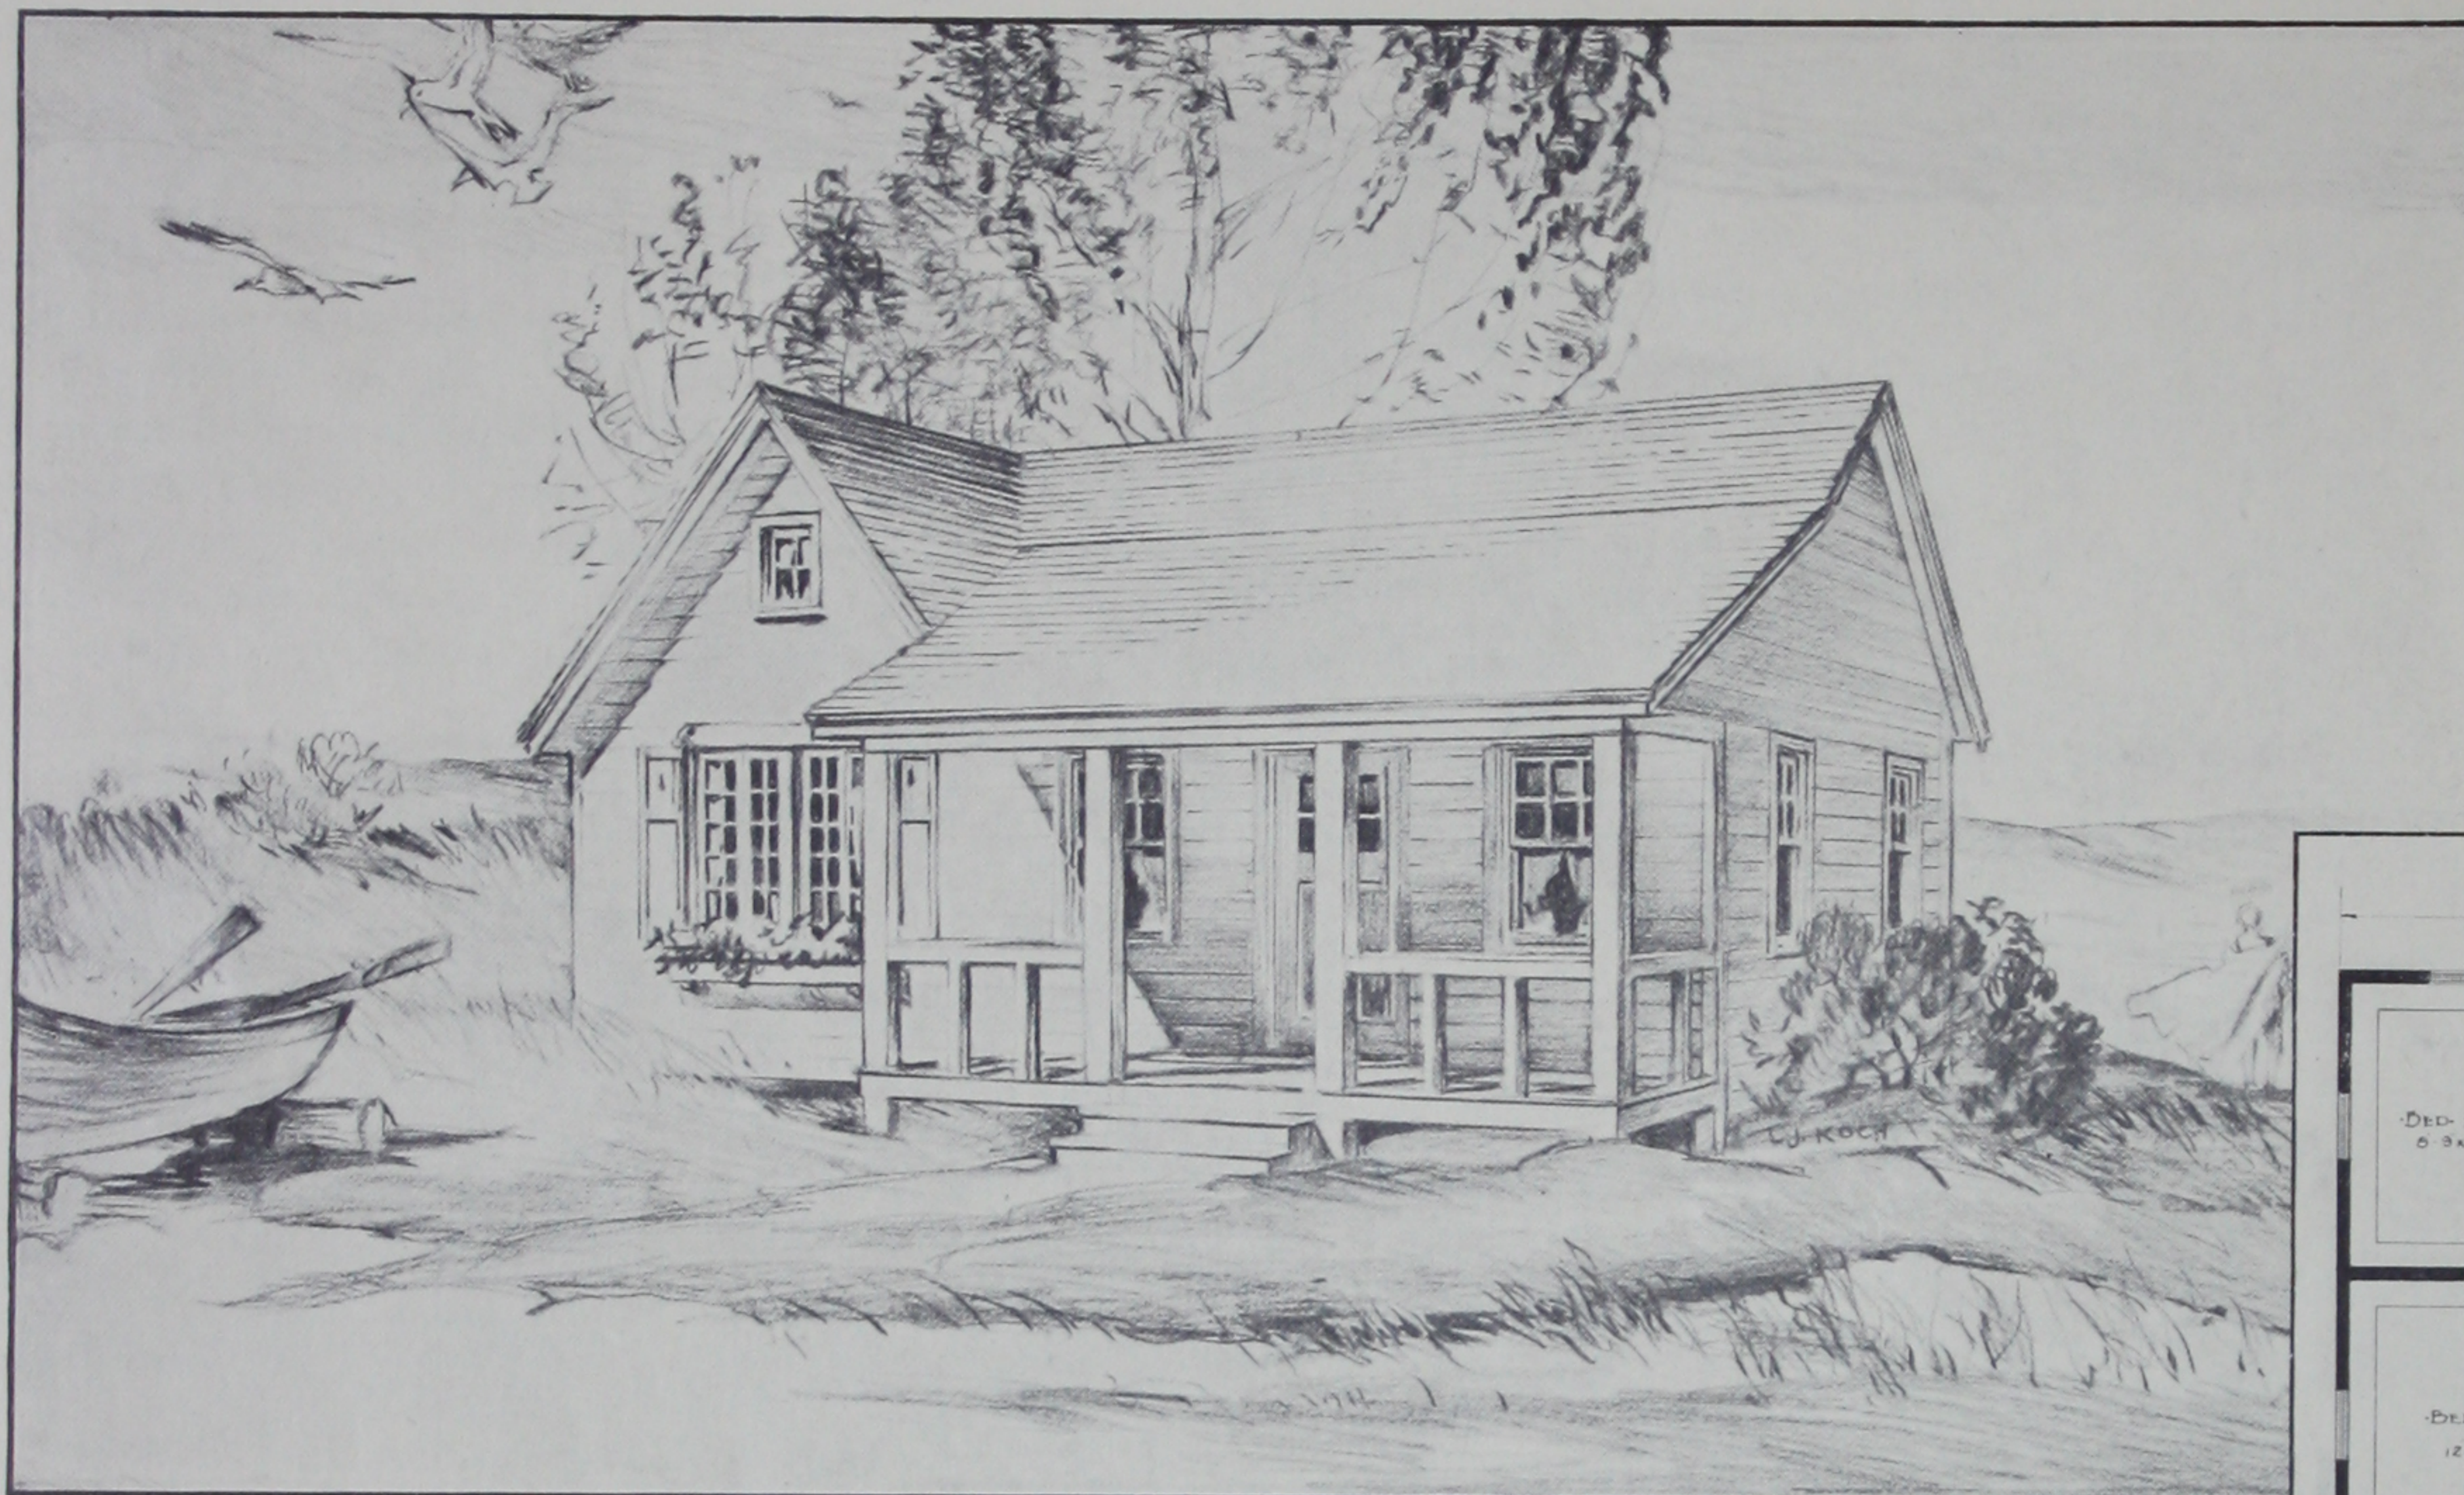

The person searching for a bungalow of originality and charm with an unusual arrangement of rooms, and different in appearance from the average commonplace shoe-box plan, will appreciate The Shelbourn. Relatively low roof lines and modern design have done wonders in creating this interesting effect.

The grouping of the bedrooms about the hallway gives them highly desired privacy. There is a guest closet built off the vestibule, a linen closet centrally located and a separate closet for each bedroom. Grouped windows and space for a fireplace in the living room serve to make it cozy and light. The beauty of this bungalow is by no means limited to the interior—the screened-in rear porch, the novel entrance and the shingled exterior all lend charm and warmth to its appearance.

The SHORELAND

Straightforward in design, inexpensive to build, this bungalow is excellent in both plan and exterior. Each room is provided with large windows which allow for plenty of light and thorough ventilation in the hottest weather.

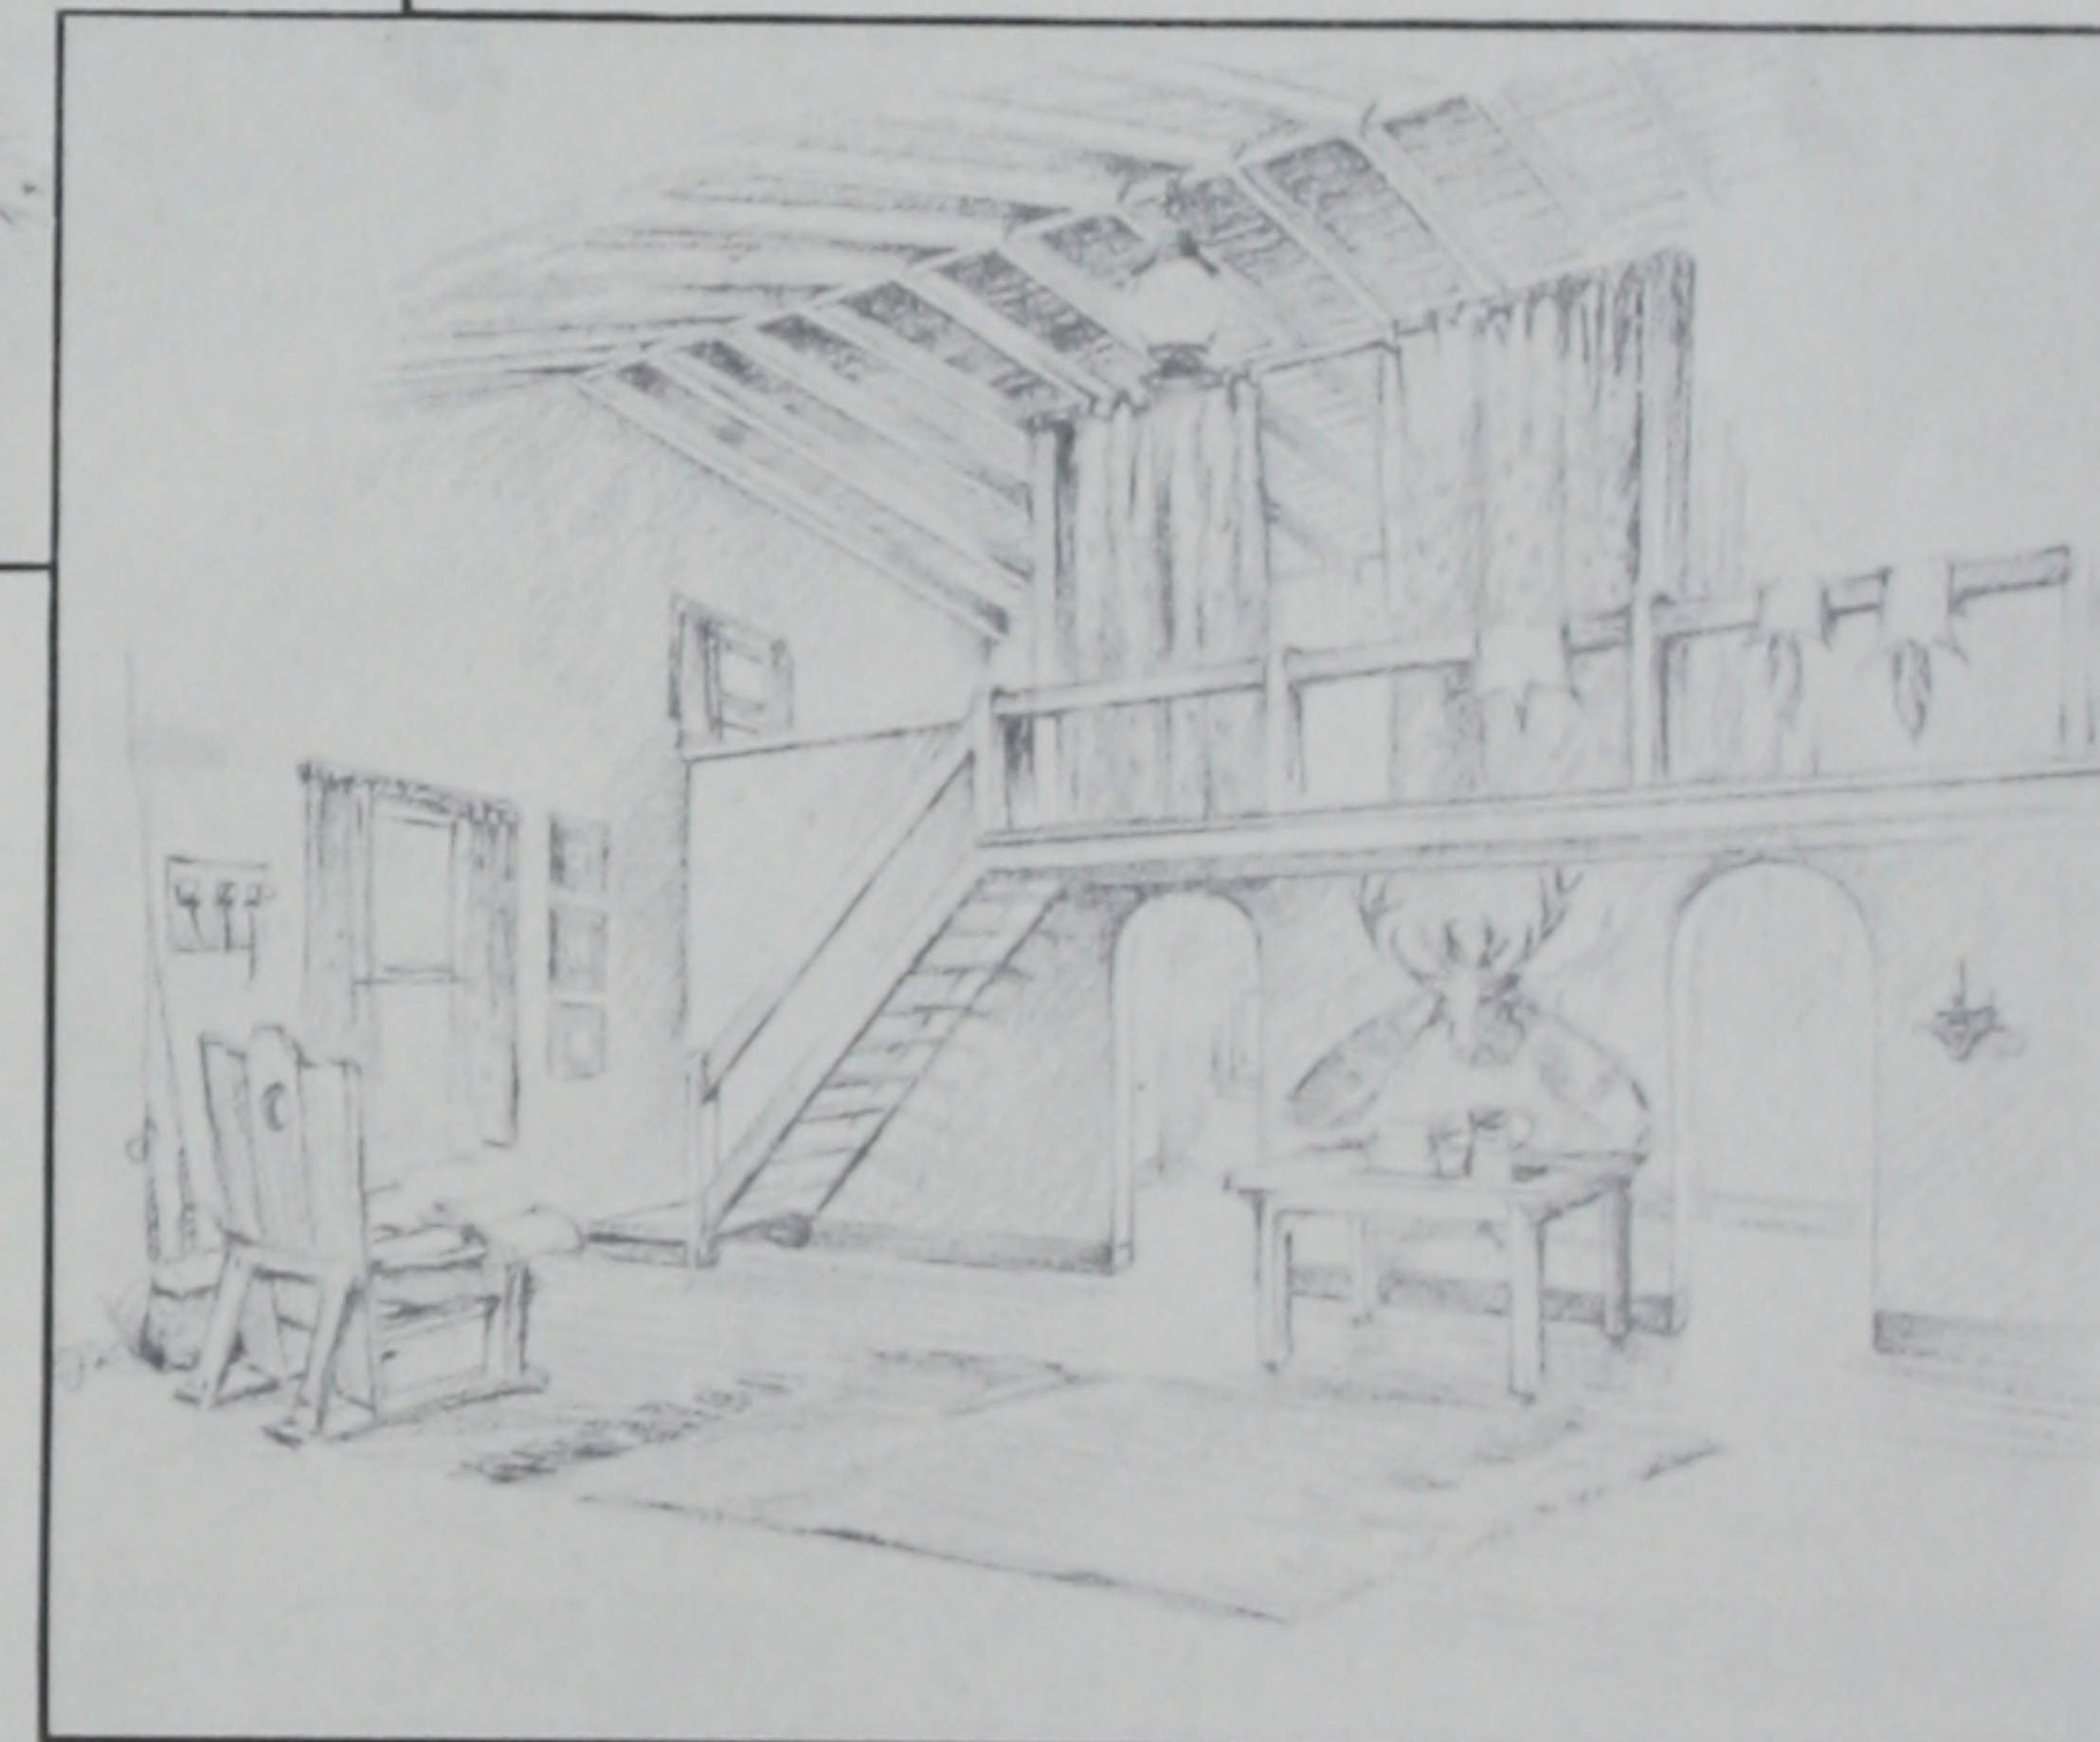

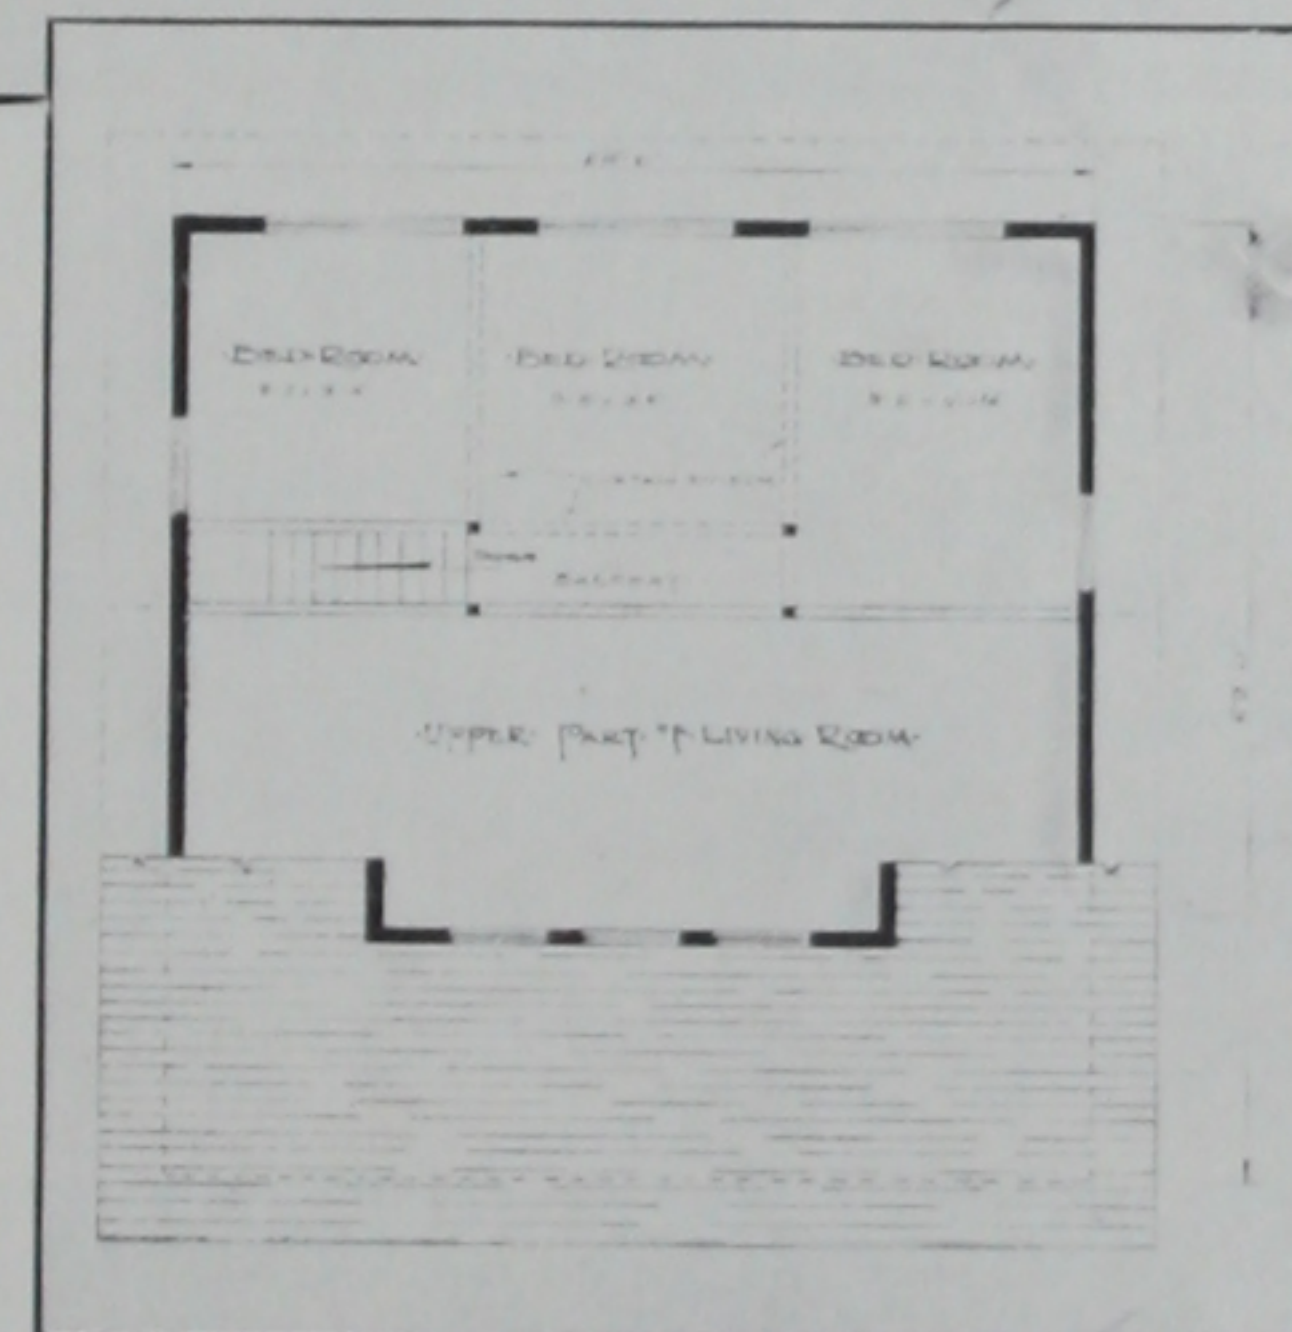

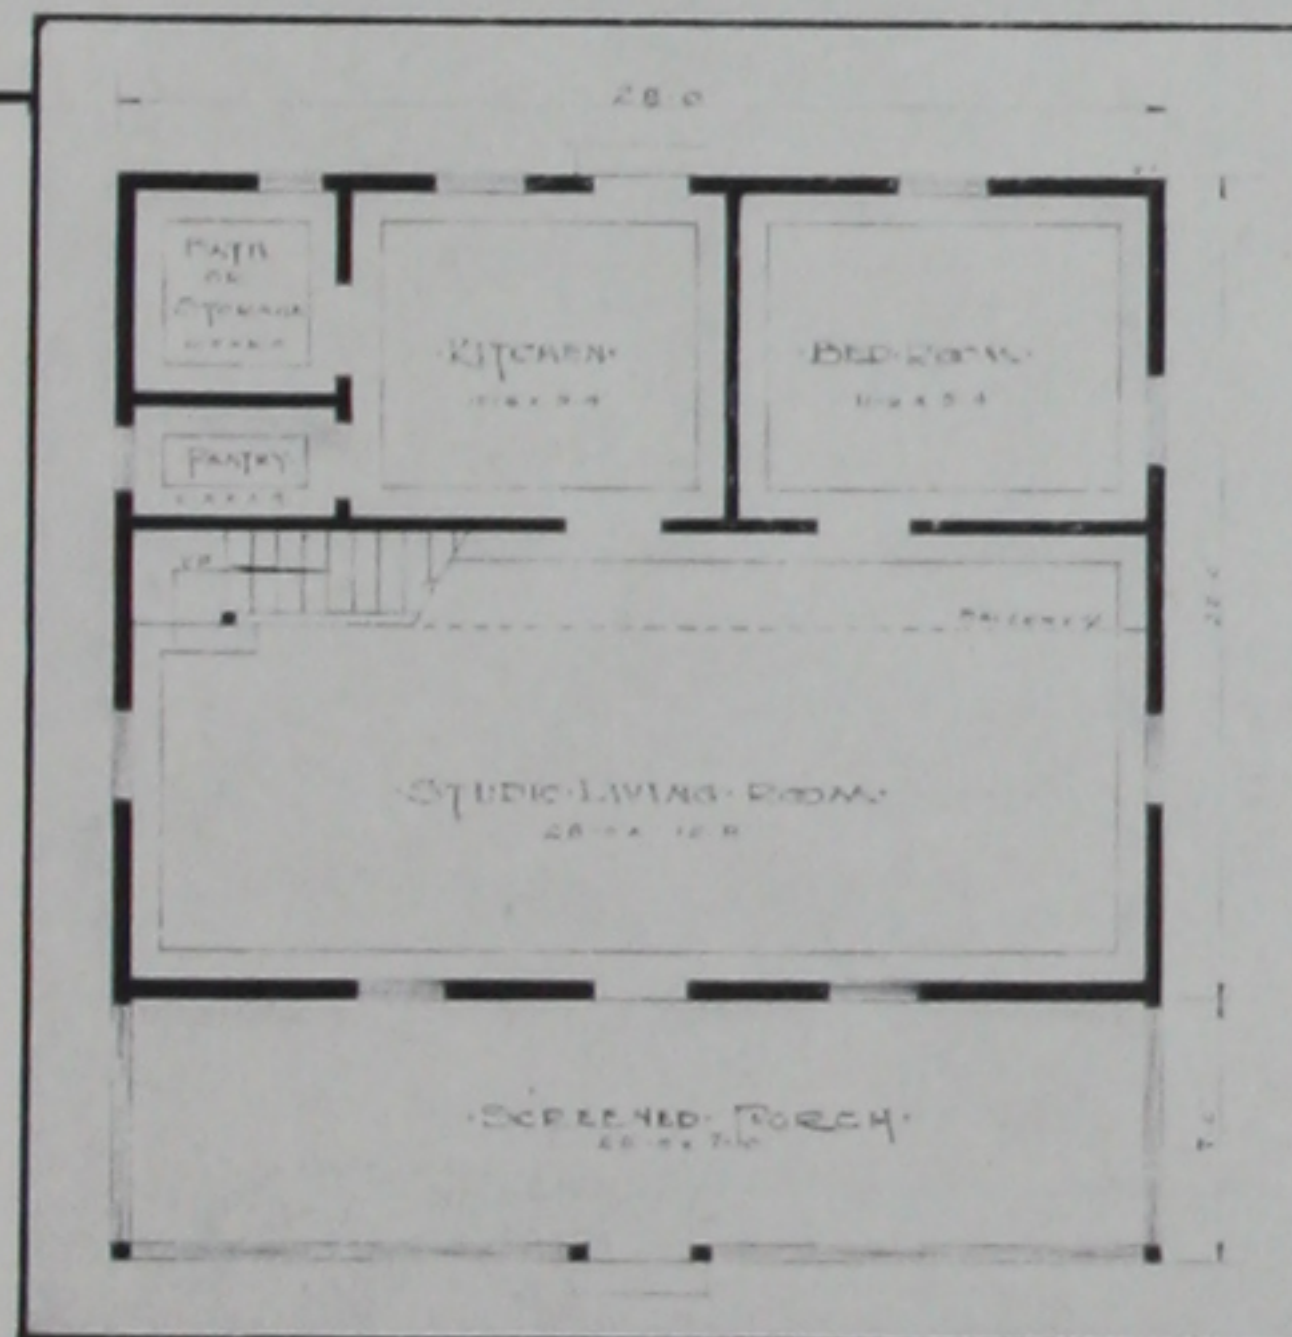

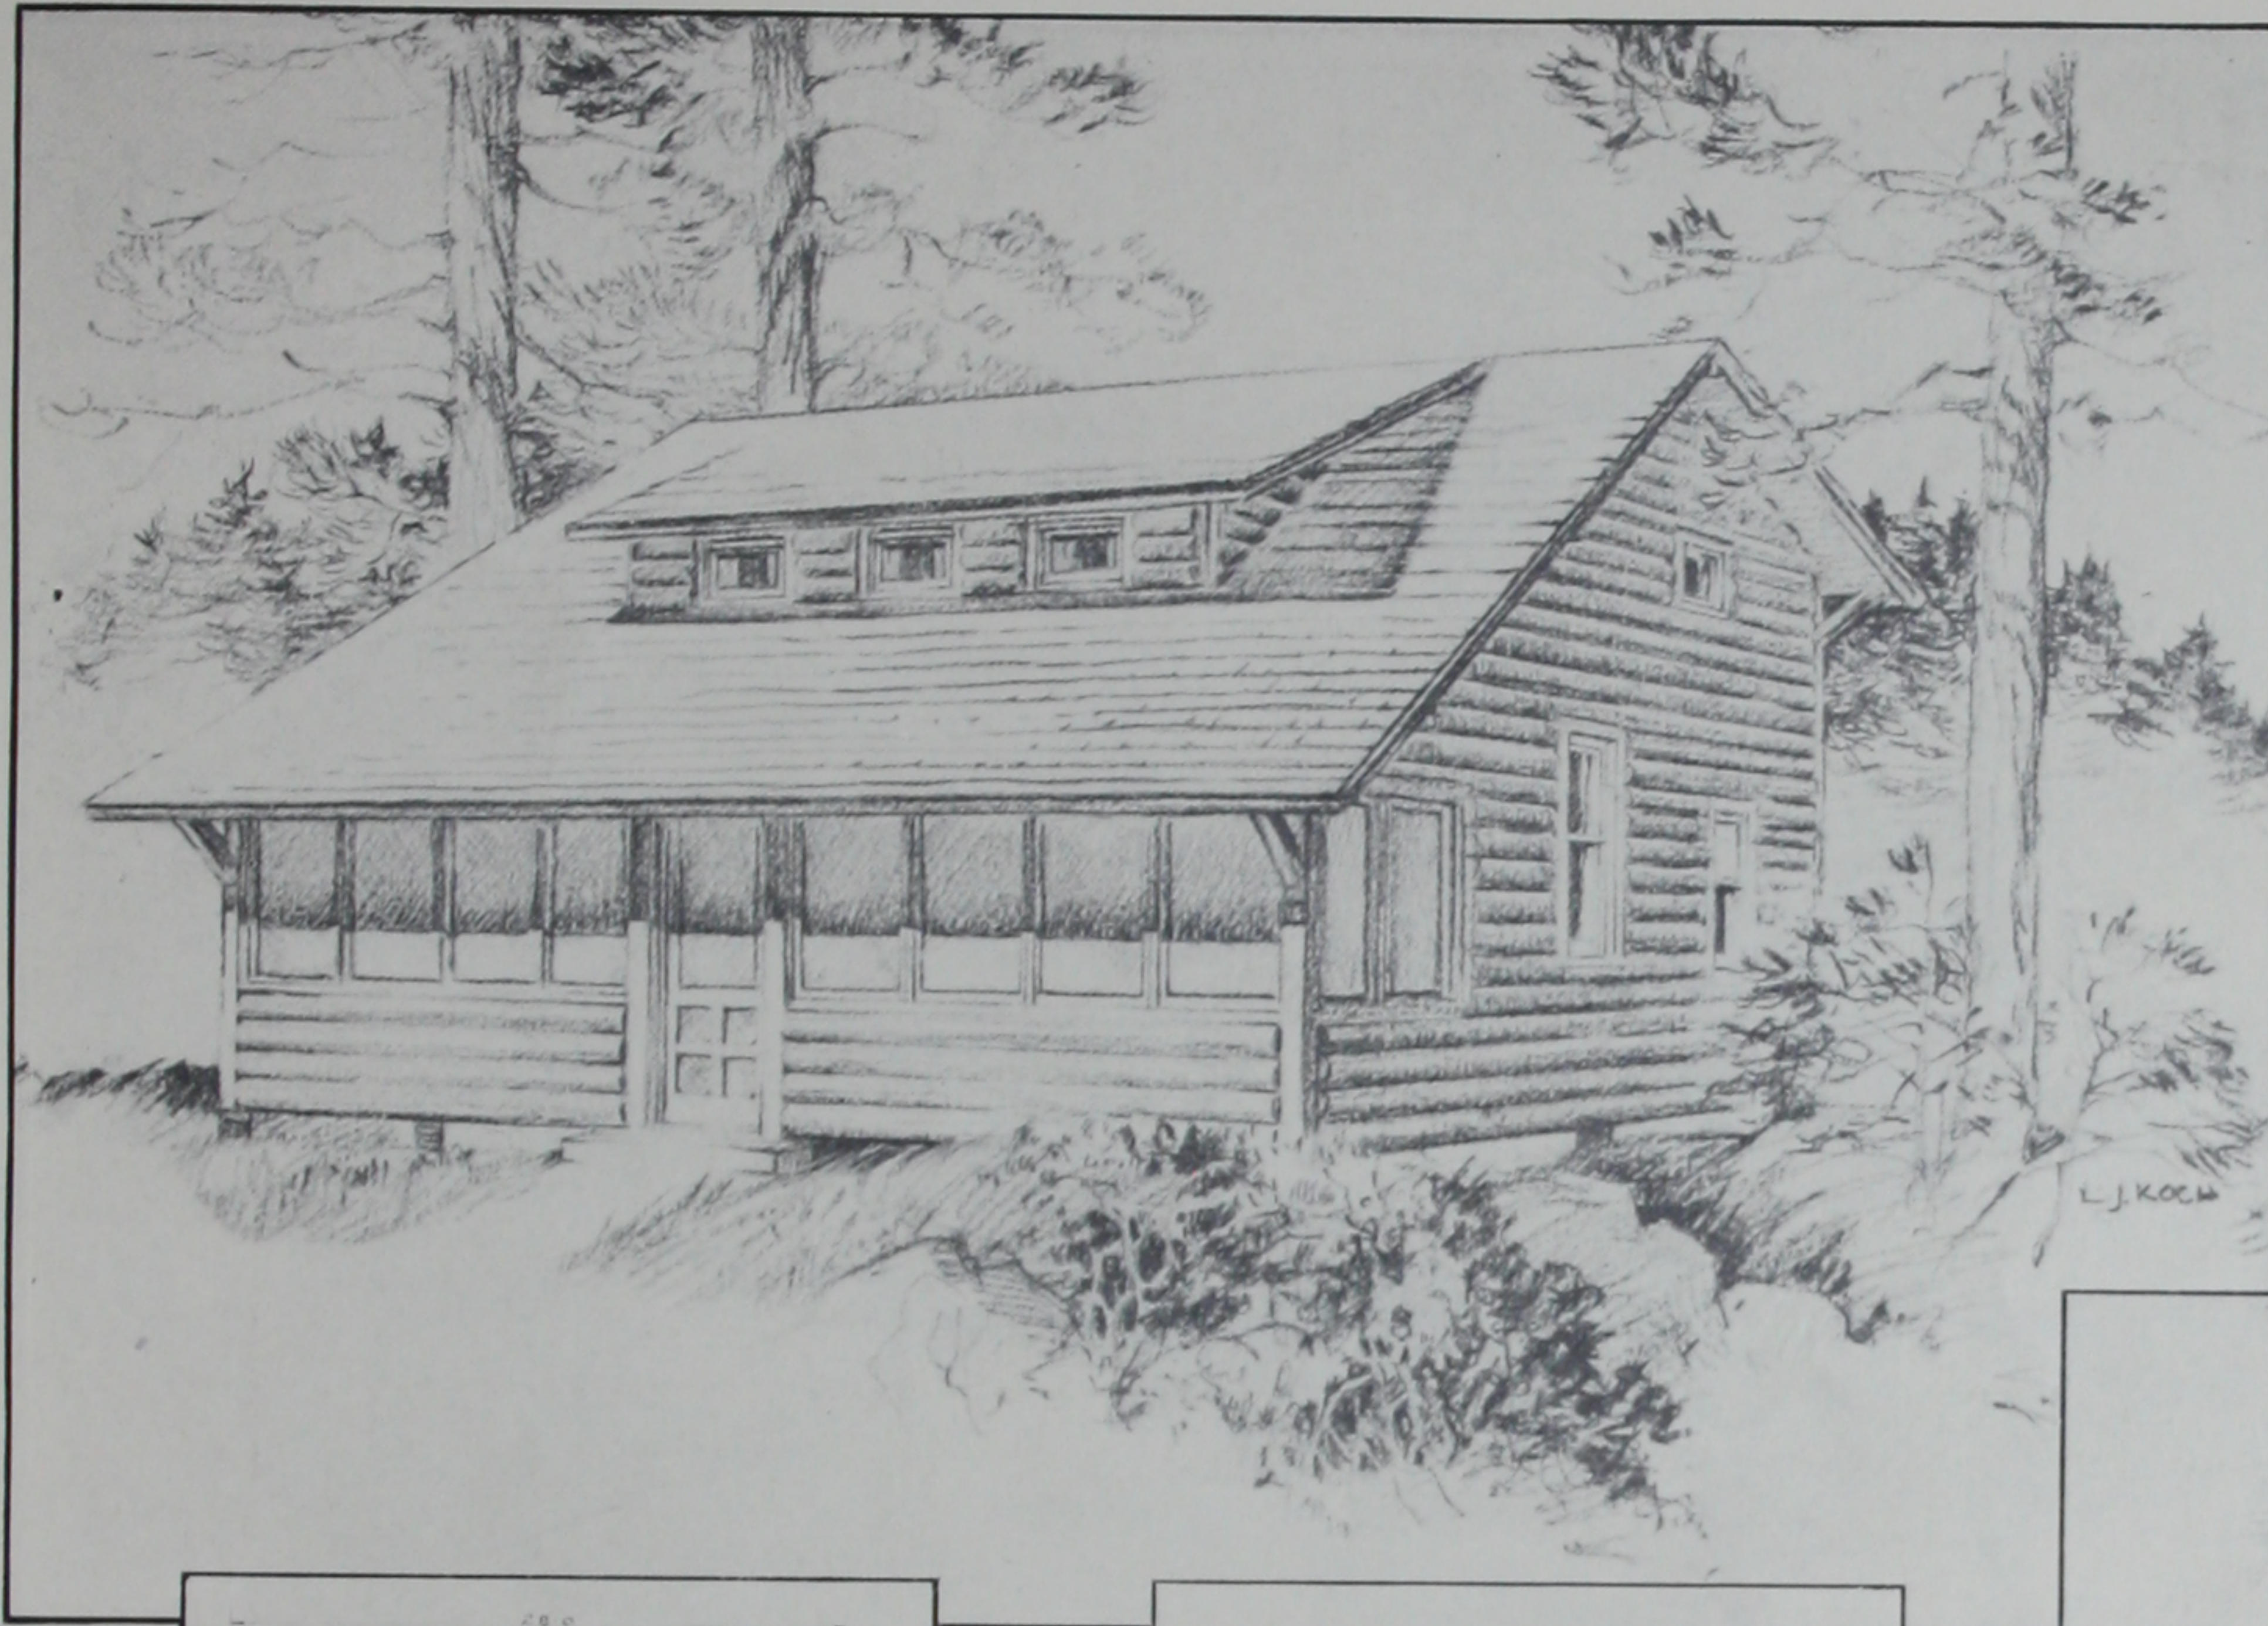

For a bungalow that is comparatively small in area The Shoreland offers an enormous amount of usable floor space. Its balanced design can be recognized by the simple balustrade about the porch, the flower box beneath the long French windows and the novelty clapboard siding that is so well used on the entire exterior. Three large corner bedrooms—a large kitchen—space for bath or storage and a 17' 3" living room opening directly to the front porch make this design a desirable one.

HARRIS BROTHERS COMPANY

The LODGE

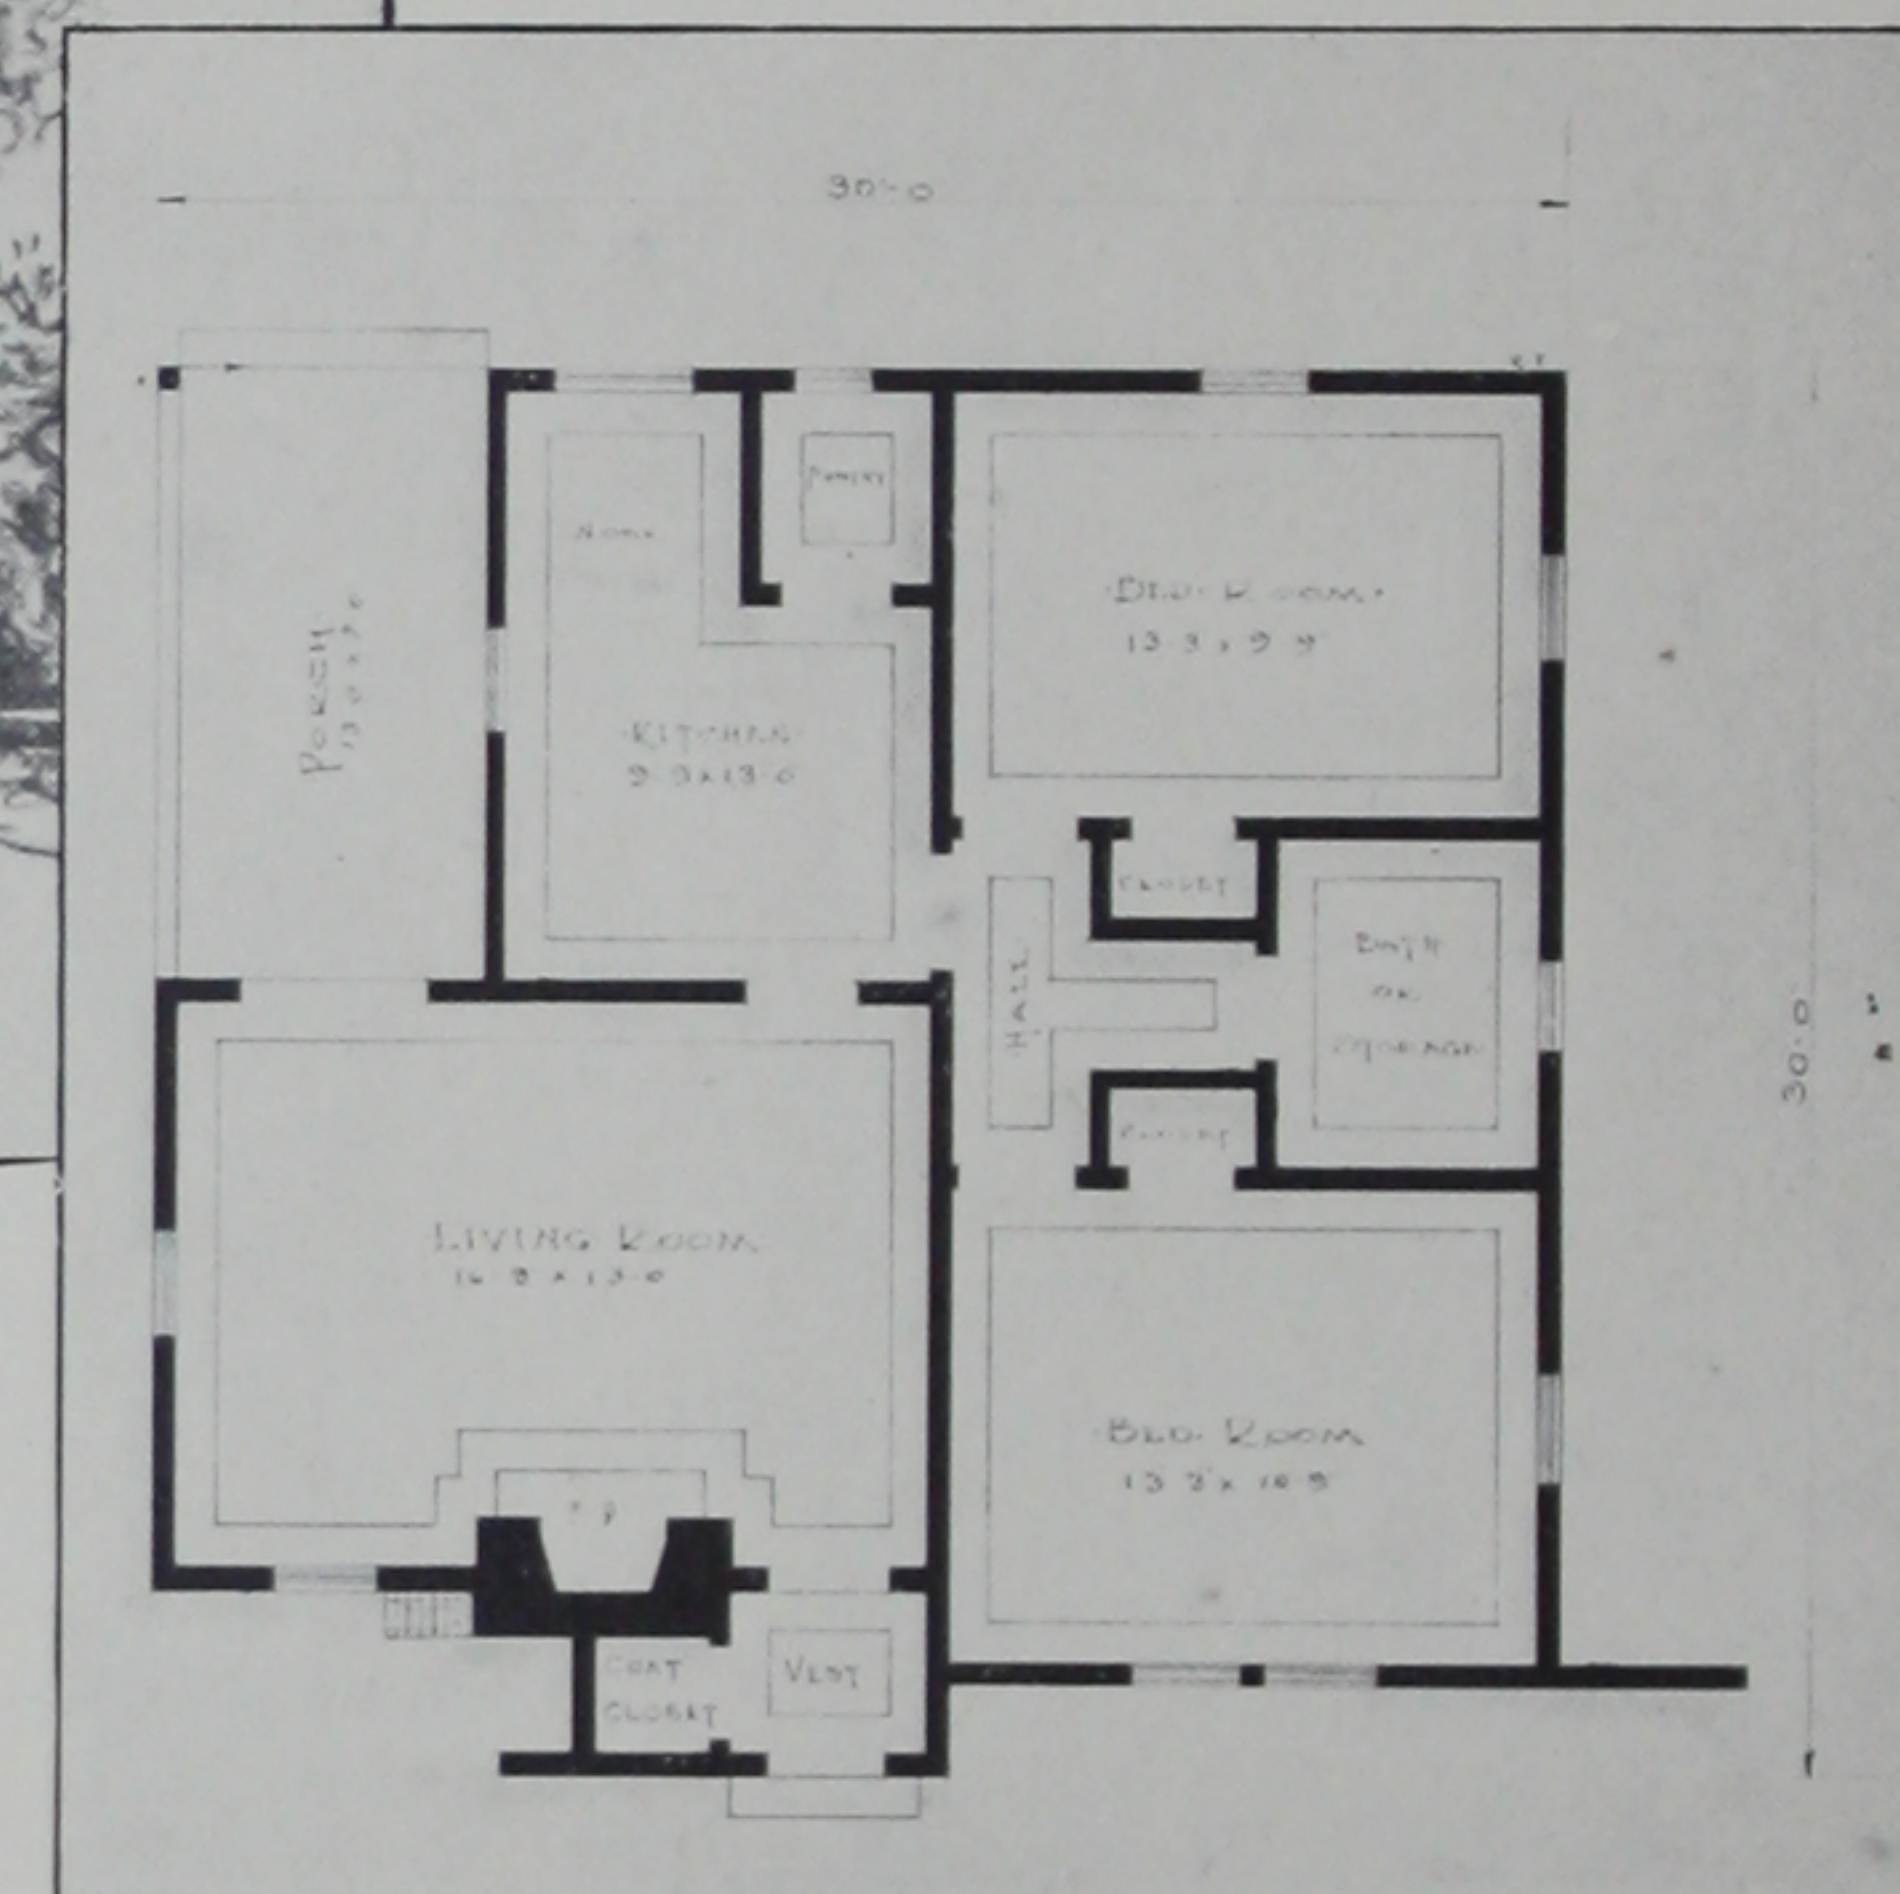

This studio model with its log siding exterior is an entirely new and modern treatment in bungalow design. It is complete to the smallest detail yet spacious to the point of large accommodations. A full width screened porch can be used as additional sleeping quarters. A 28-foot living room—a downstairs bedroom—a kitchen and pantry and space for either bath or storage complete the first floor plan. A stairway from the living room leads to the balcony that can be curtained or partitioned into as many as four bedrooms. For a hunting lodge or a summer bungalow you will find this design to be most practical and inexpensive.

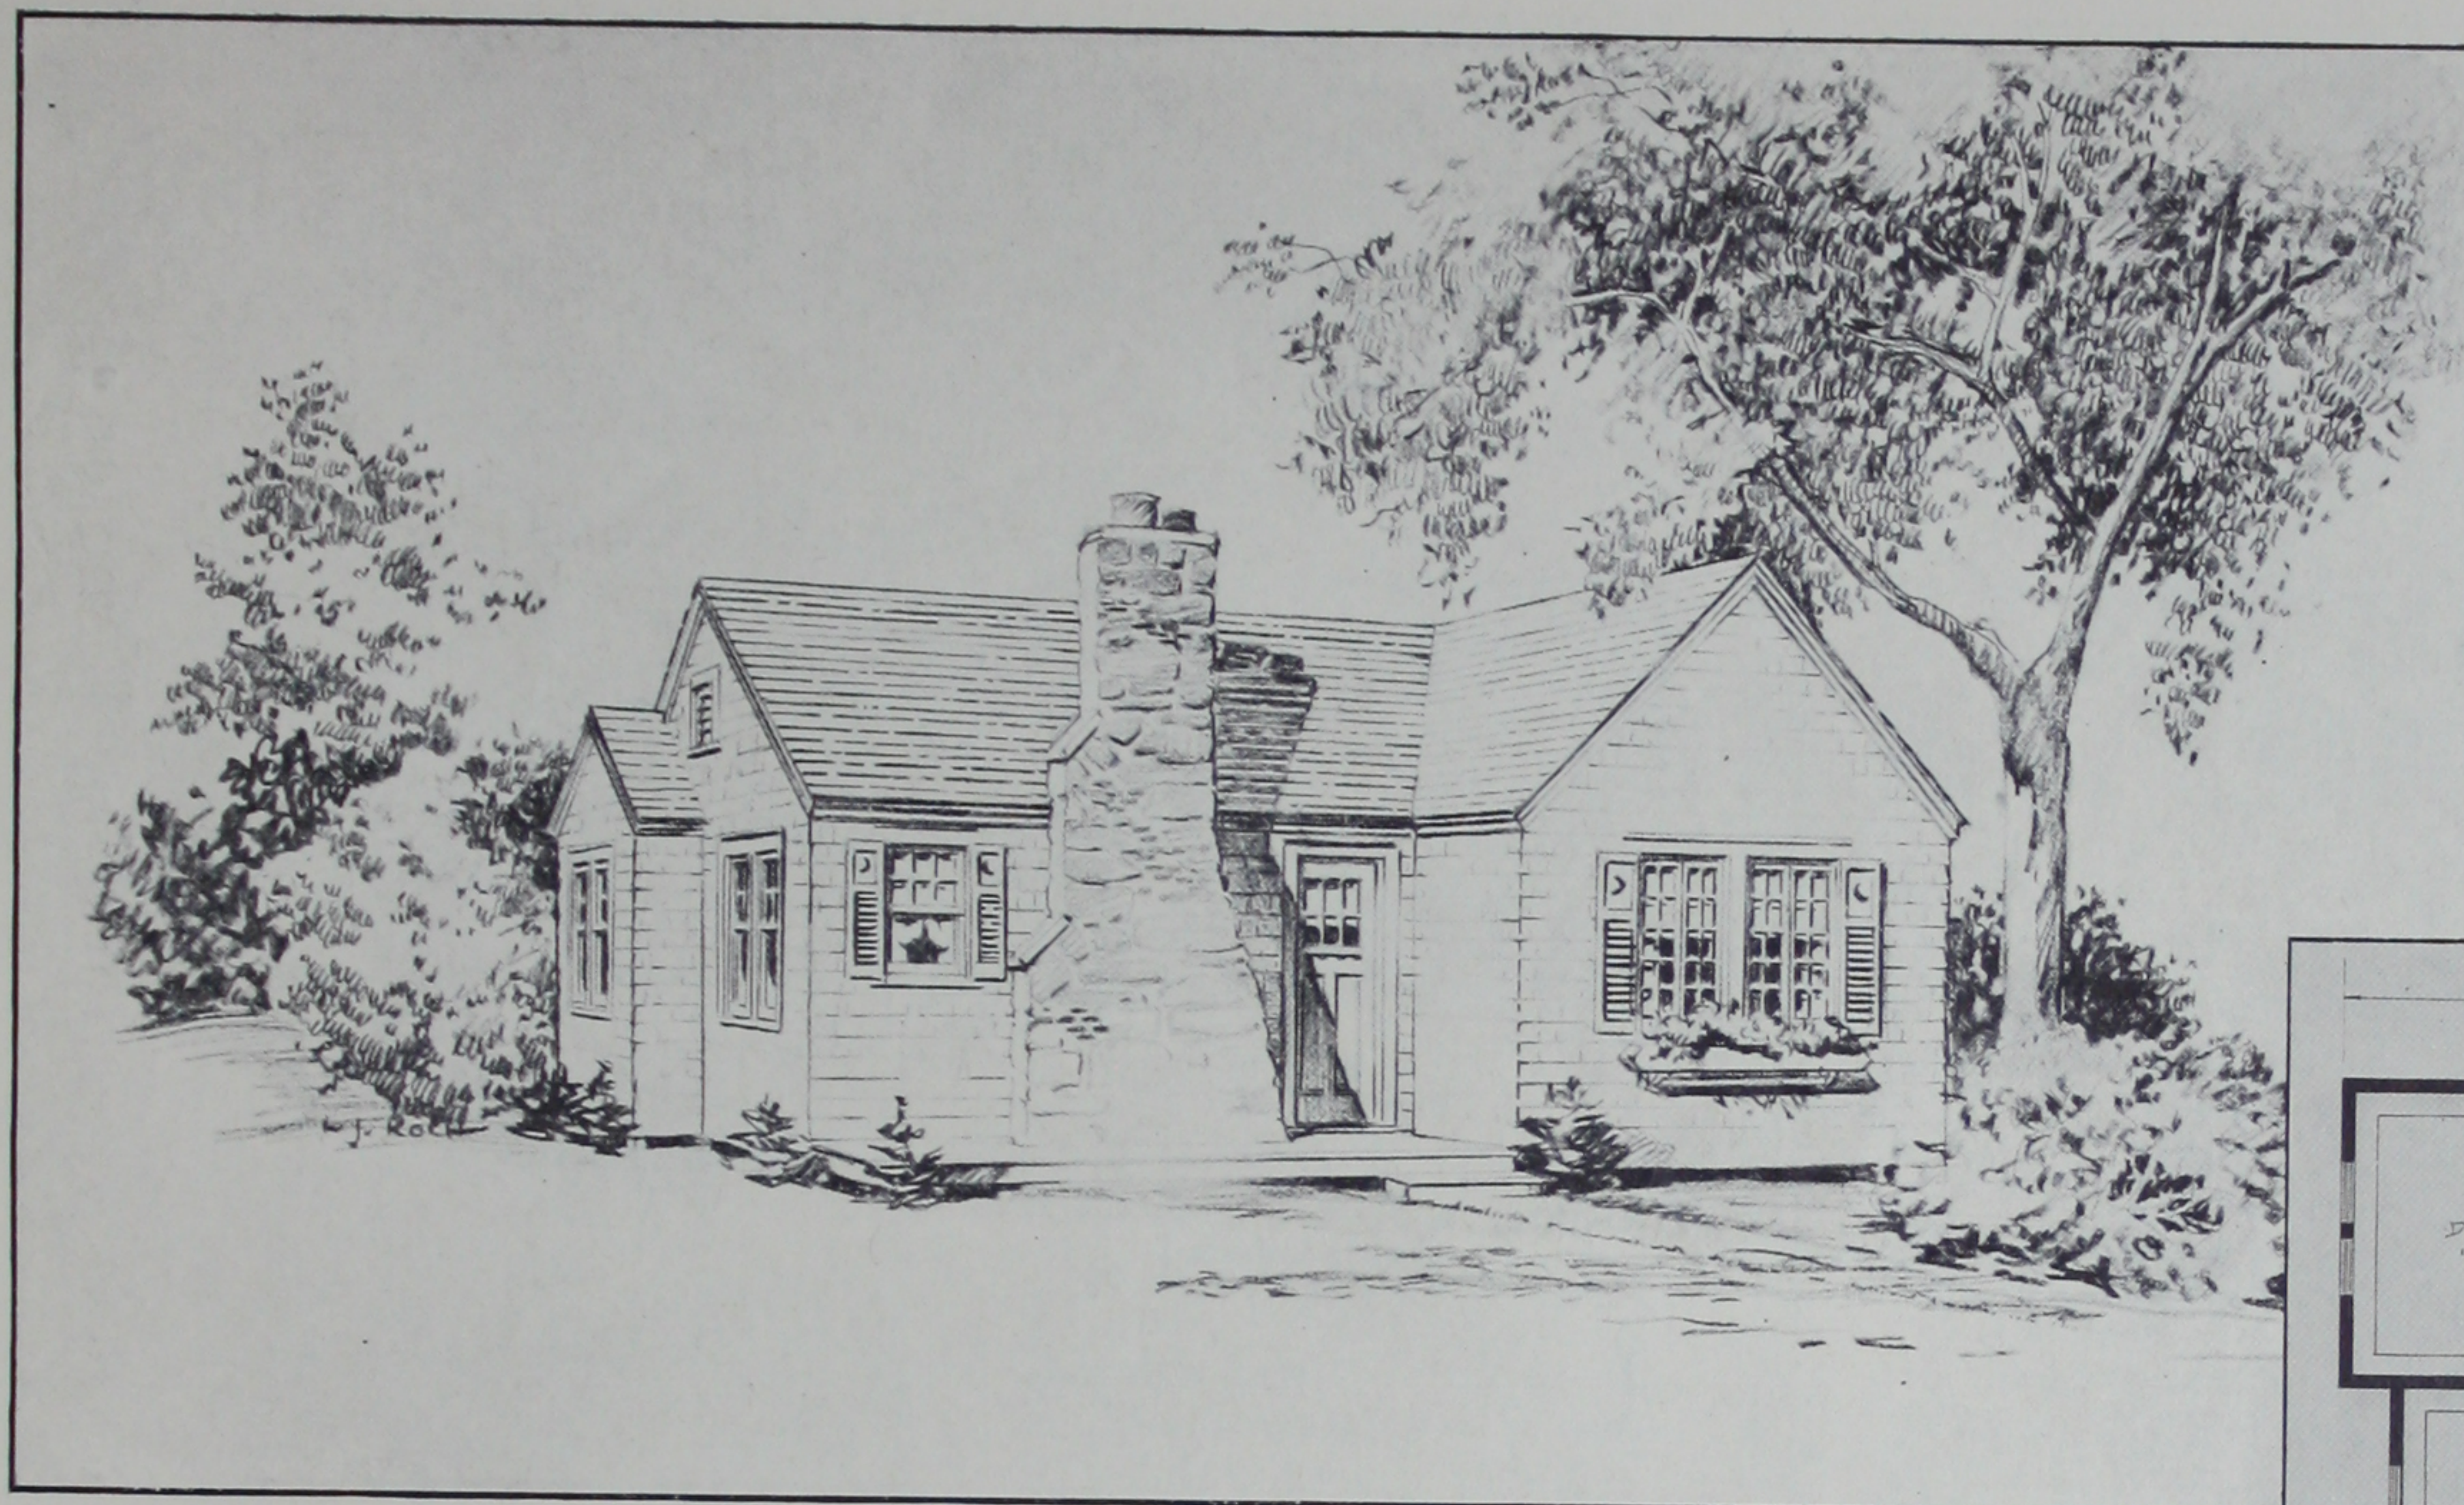

The DOUGLASTON

Here is a bungalow that undoubtedly you will like. There is every justification for it. It has an efficient floor plan with all the wanted things, and an exterior for which the present-day family has shown a decided preference. Its square plan makes it possible to face it in any position on your lot.

The room arrangement is fine. Sleeping quarters and space for bath are along one side and separated from the living room by a small hall. The living room is of comfortable size, with space for a partly recessed fireplace which takes up no valuable floor room. Exposure on three sides allows for a flood of light in the living room. The kitchen has a pantry and there is ample space provided for a comfortable breakfast nook. A 13-foot open porch borders the living room and kitchen.

The ARVERNE

The Arverne combines all that is new and desirable in modern bungalow architecture, perfectly blended in a striking exterior and an interior that cannot be surpassed for comfort and utility. Nothing lacking or overlooked by our architects in their successful efforts to produce this most unusually well-balanced design.

The entrance from the front terrace leads directly into a living room of generous dimensions that is enhanced by double windows and space for an open fireplace. The dining room is conveniently located between the living room and kitchen and projects slightly from the side giving an opportunity for unusual interior decoration. French windows, window boxes, paneled shutters and a completely shingled exterior are all subjects that lend a charming appearance to the outward beauty.

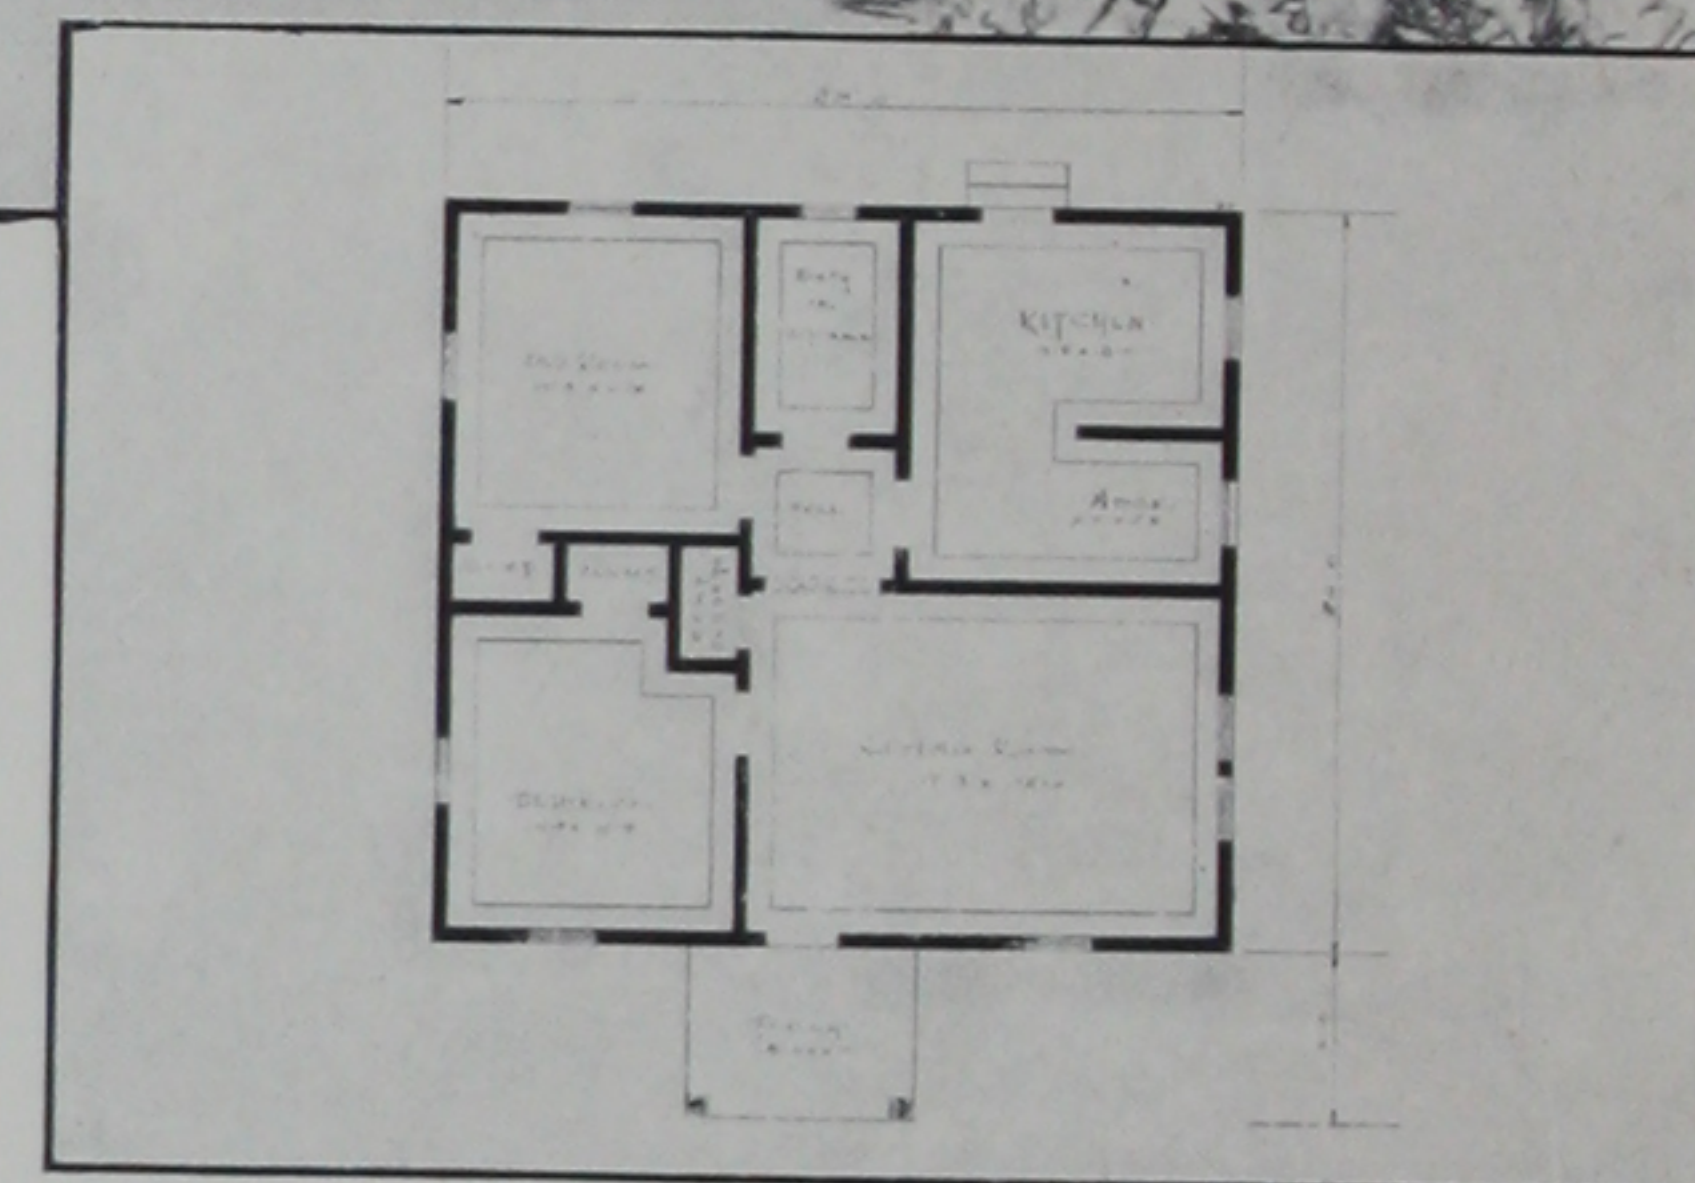

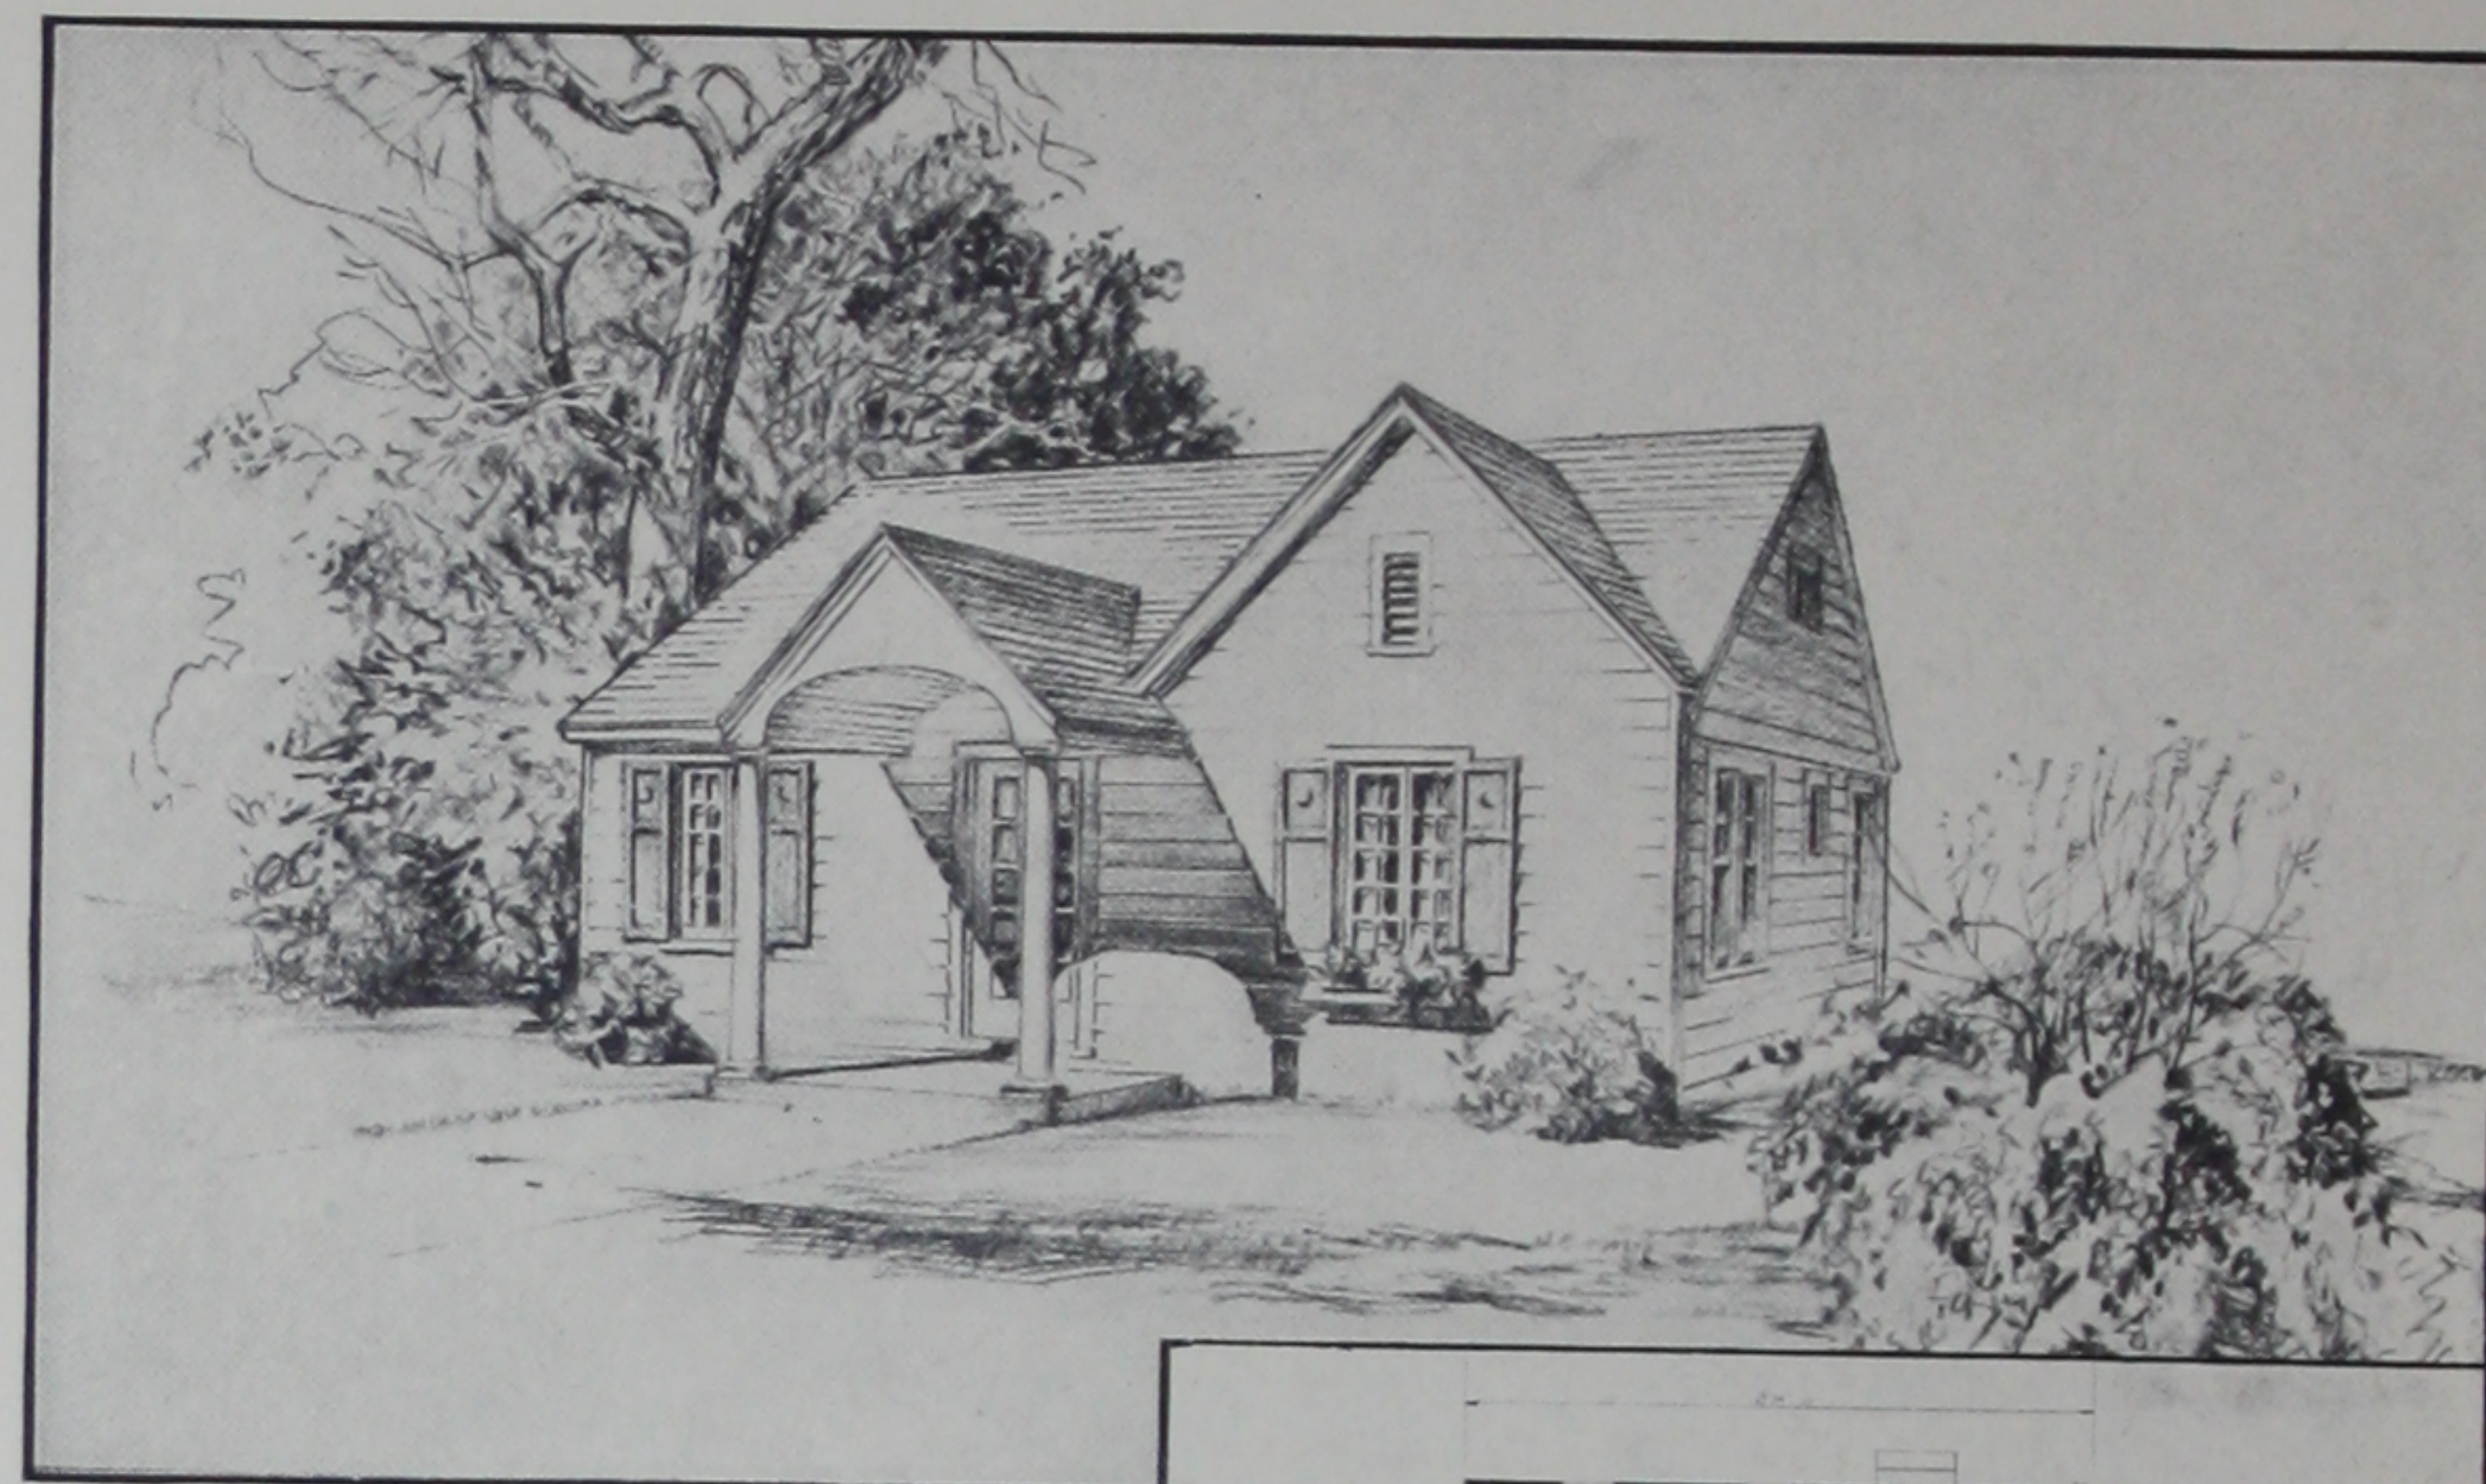

HARRIS BROTHERS COMPANY

The WOODRIDGE

Here is another model of the cabin design with a complete log siding exterior. A 24-foot five-inch screened porch sweeps clear across the front and in addition there is a back porch 20-foot wide. Either or both of these porches can be used as additional sleeping quarters. The living room, too, is full width and has a streaming flow of light from the front porch. A kitchen and bedroom complete this modern plan.

The ELMONT

In this delightful colonial model we have excellent proof of the fact that the small, inexpensive bungalow can be as comfortable and attractive as many a larger and more expensive model. The plan is compact and well arranged, the living room is large in size and the closets are numerous. The kitchen has an advantageous position in the rear with the dining nook beside it. There are two bedrooms of equal size.

HARRIS BROTHERS COMPANY

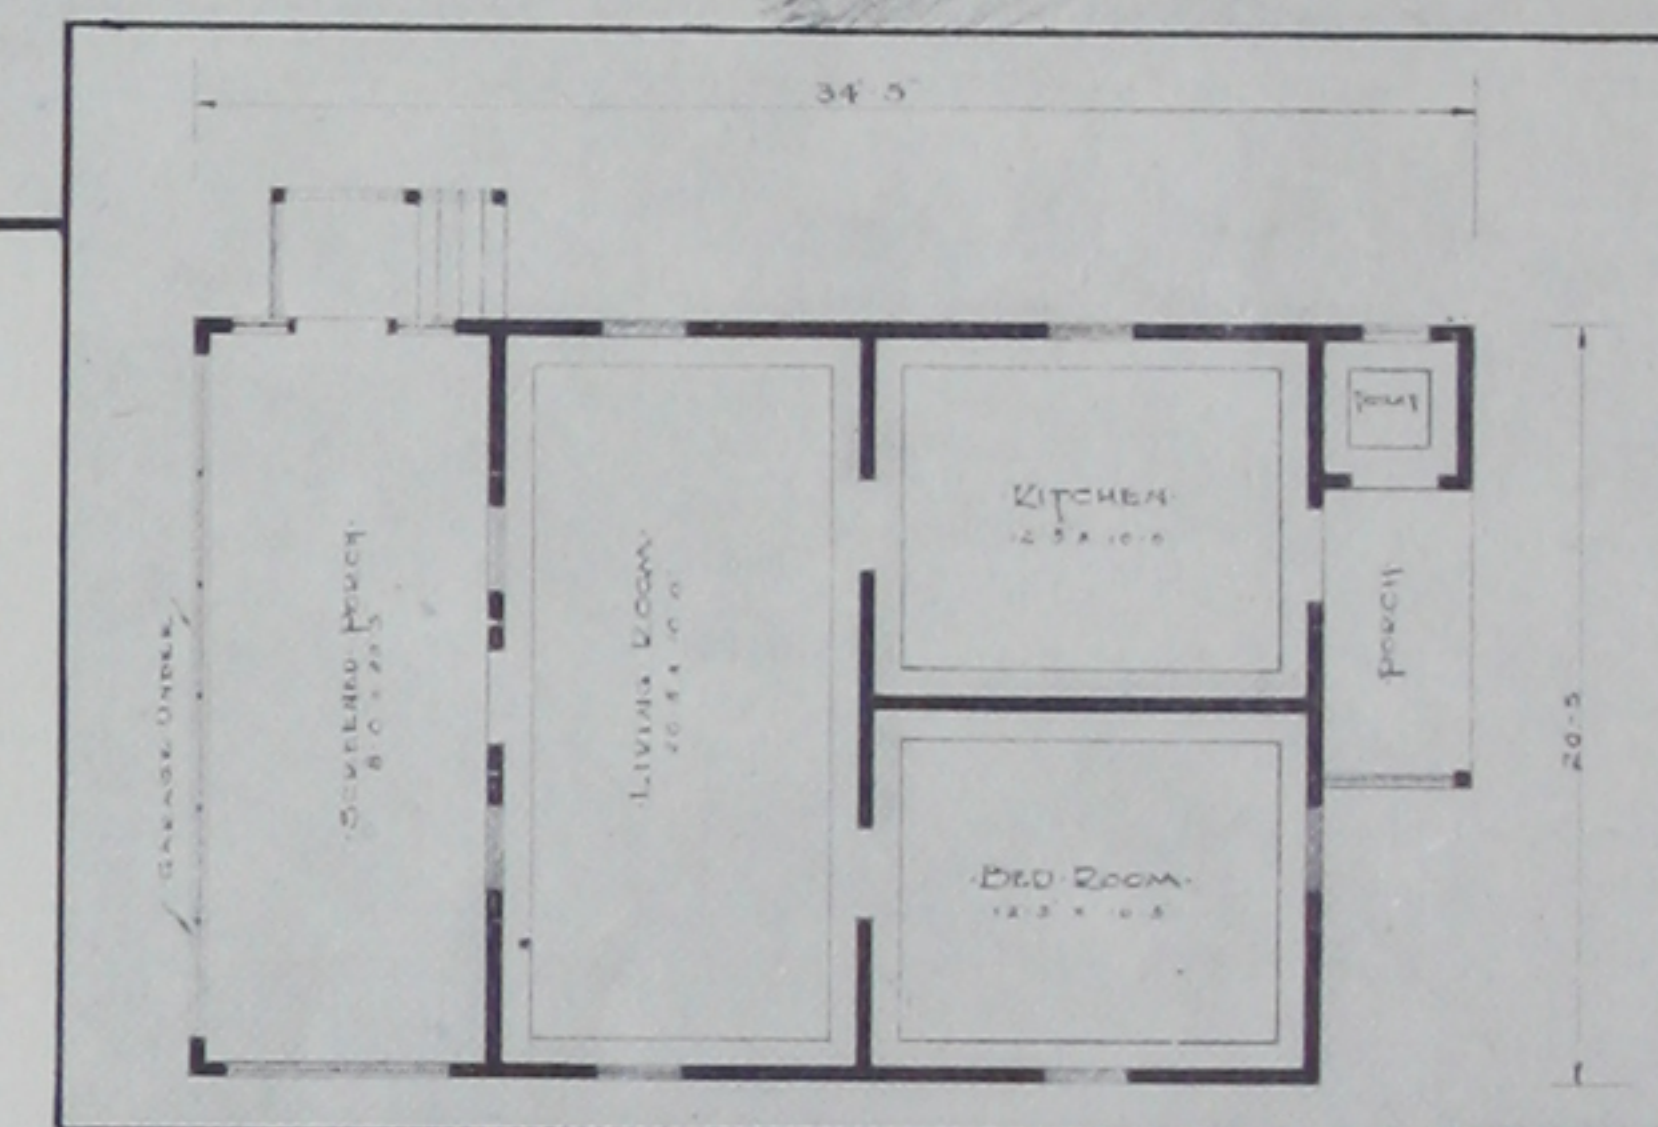

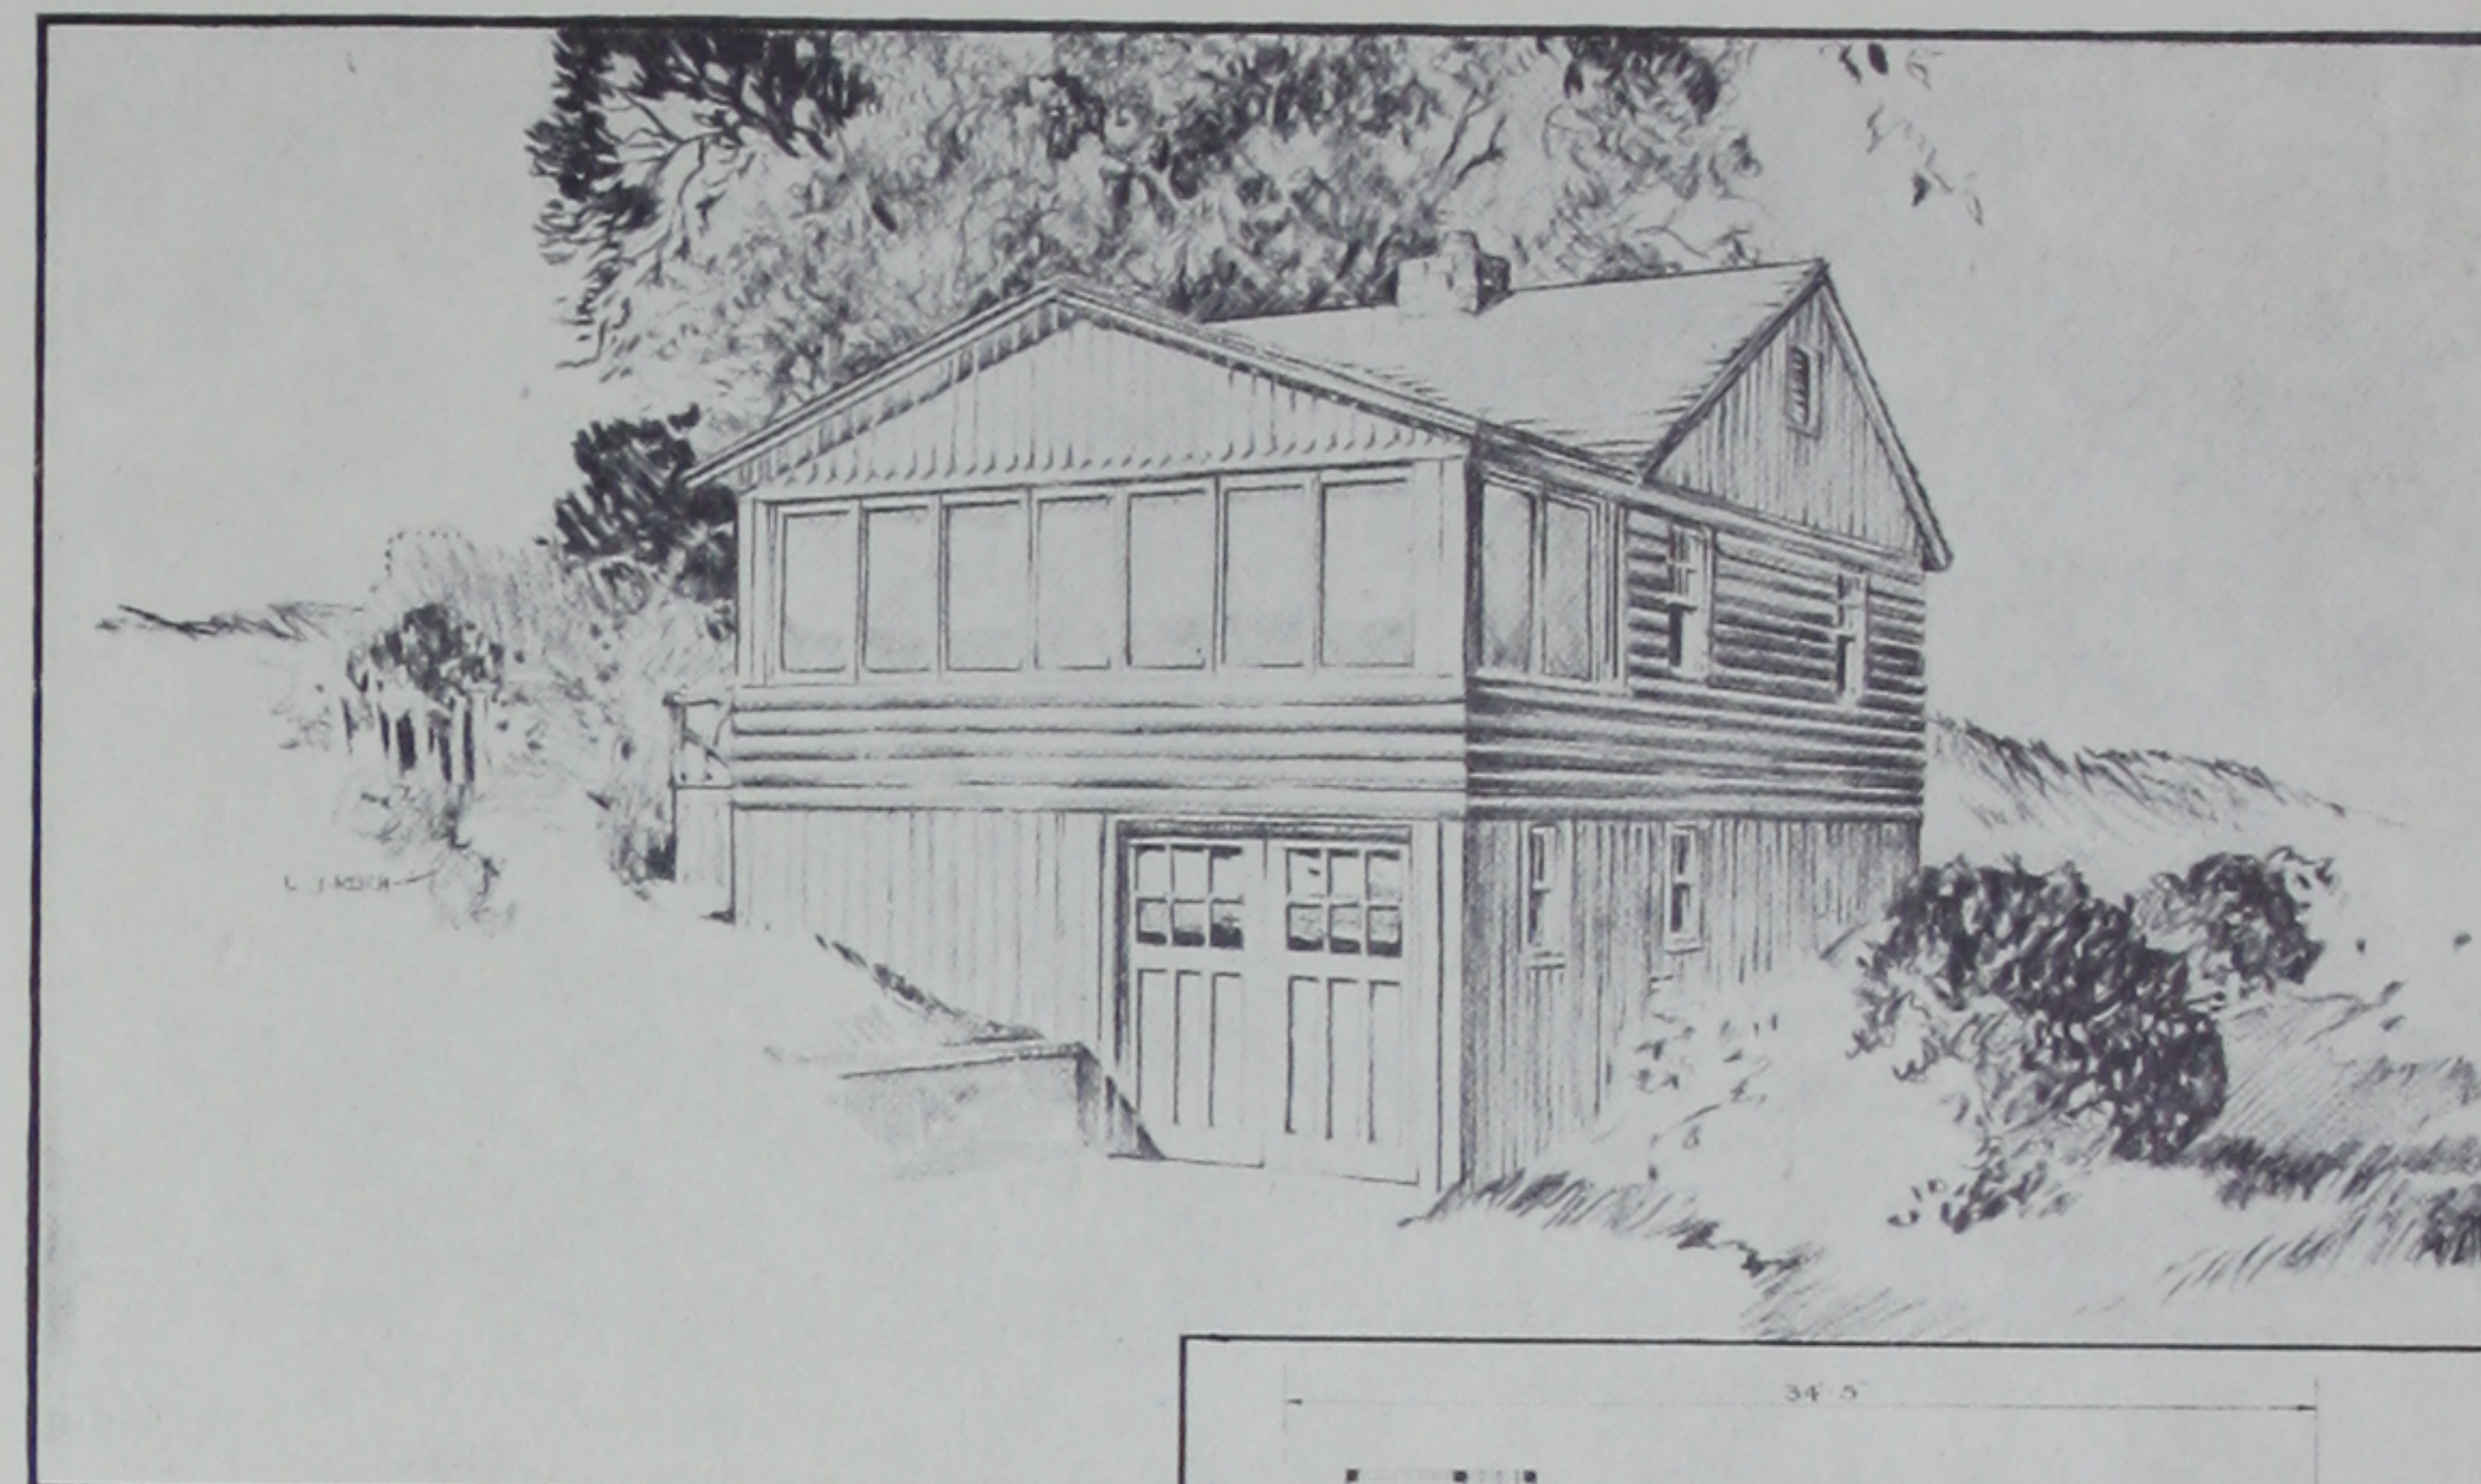

The ARDSLEY

Here is an attractive exterior combination of novelty siding and shingling.

The front entrance door at the extreme right leads through the corner breakfast room into a full-length living room that provides space for an open fireplace at the far end. The front screened porch connects through French Doors with the living room. There are two side bedrooms, a kitchen that is served with a side entrance and space for bath or storage.

The HILDALE

Our architects have designed this log cabin model with the garage underneath for those who summer on the mountain or hillside. In this manner they have satisfactorily solved the problem of where to place the garage plus saving you the extra cost of building one. In no way does it effect the very even floor plan or otherwise detract from space that could be used for rooms. There is a full width screened porch.

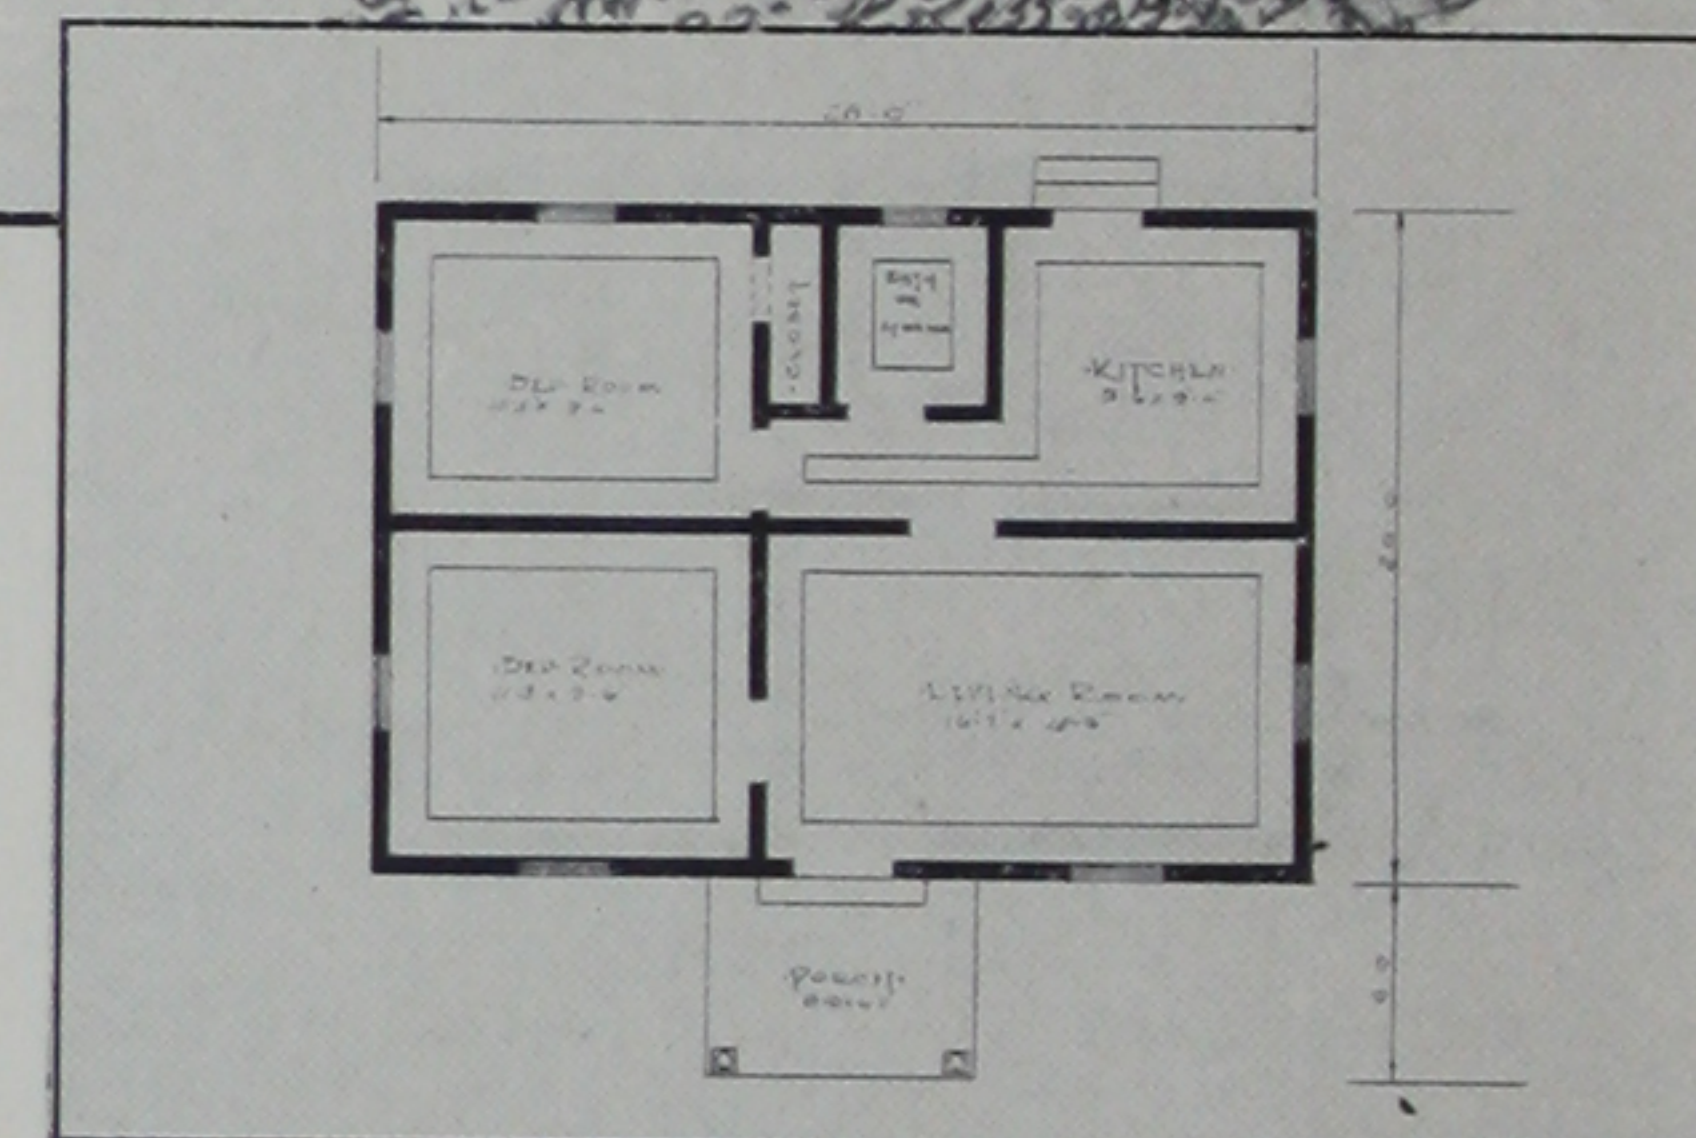

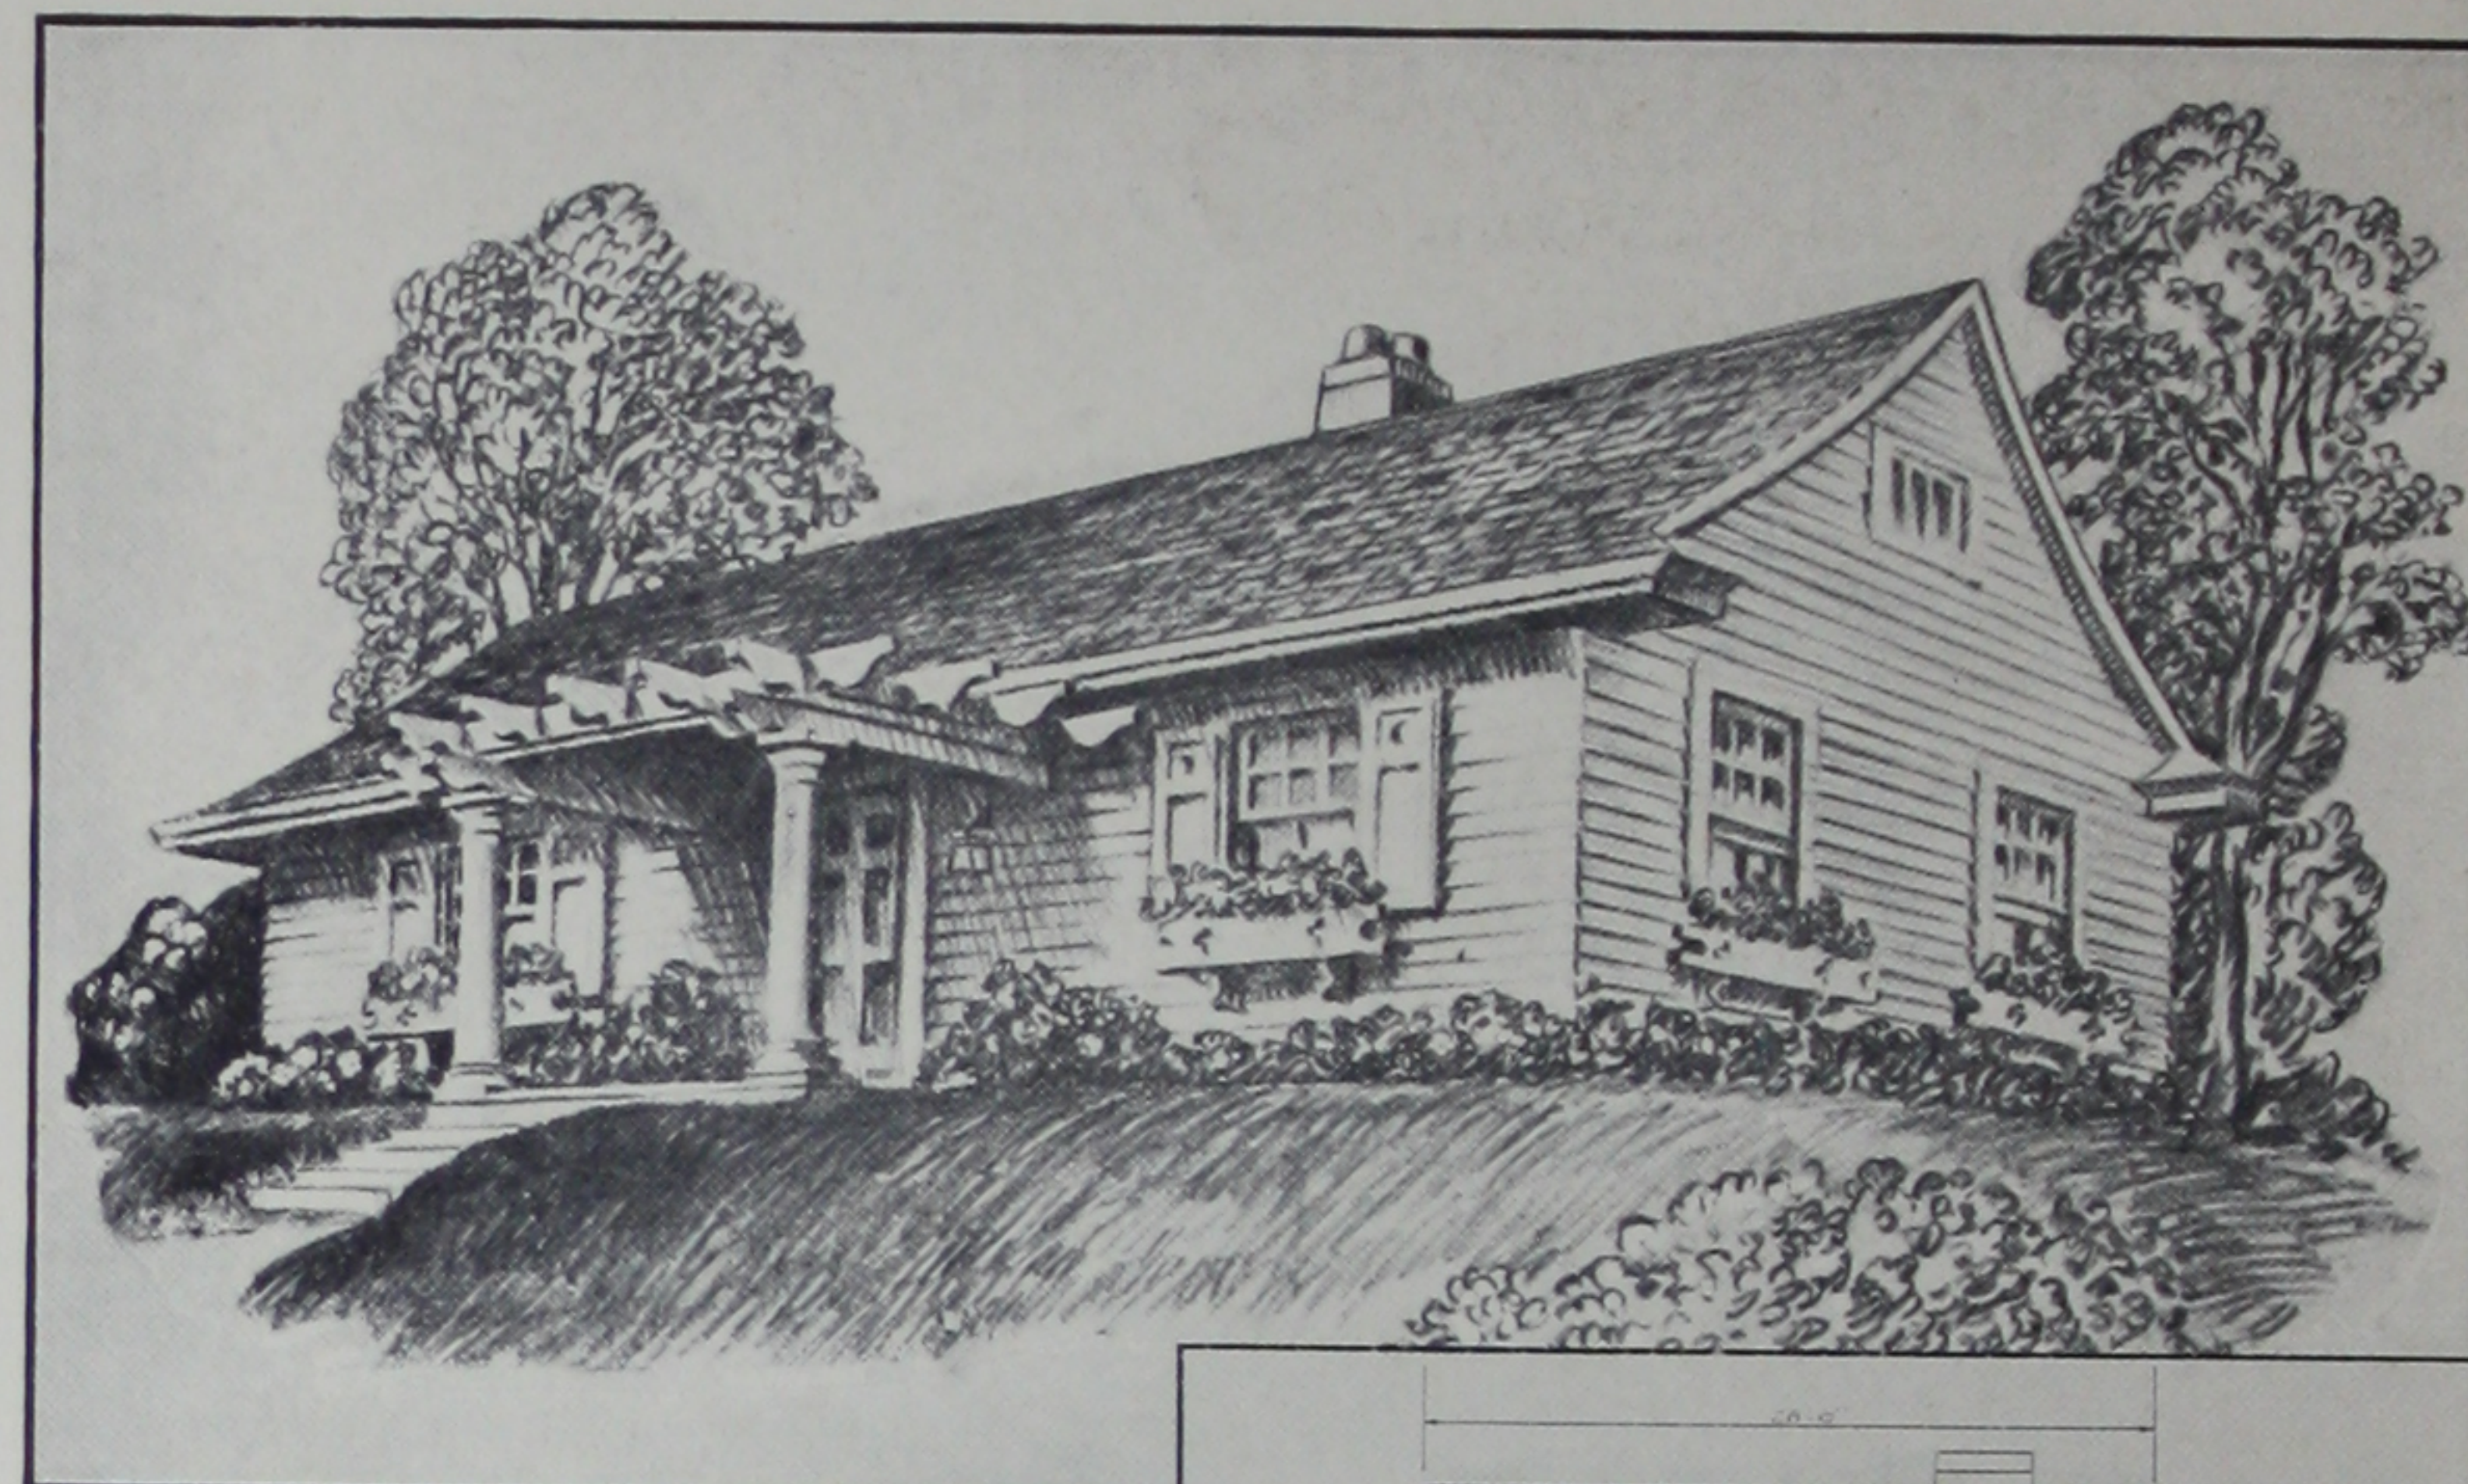

HARRIS BROTHERS COMPANY

The CEDARS

The rustic siding gives this model both beauty and individuality not obtainable in any other manner. The outstanding features are the overhanging gables, attractive scrolled brackets, rustic flower boxes and removable bronze porch screens. It is especially attractive for a lakeside summer cottage where its rustic appearance will fit in nicely with wooded surroundings. The Cedars is obtainable in three different sizes, each with distinctive floor plans and added conveniences.

The ELDORADO

Refinement and beauty characterize every line of this modern bungalow. All the comforts and conveniences of a well-ordered home are included in its plan. The exterior is designed along Dutch Colonial lines. The living room is sufficiently large to alternate as a dining room and particularly so because it is directly accessible from the kitchen. The bedrooms are well enough proportioned that twin beds can be used in each.

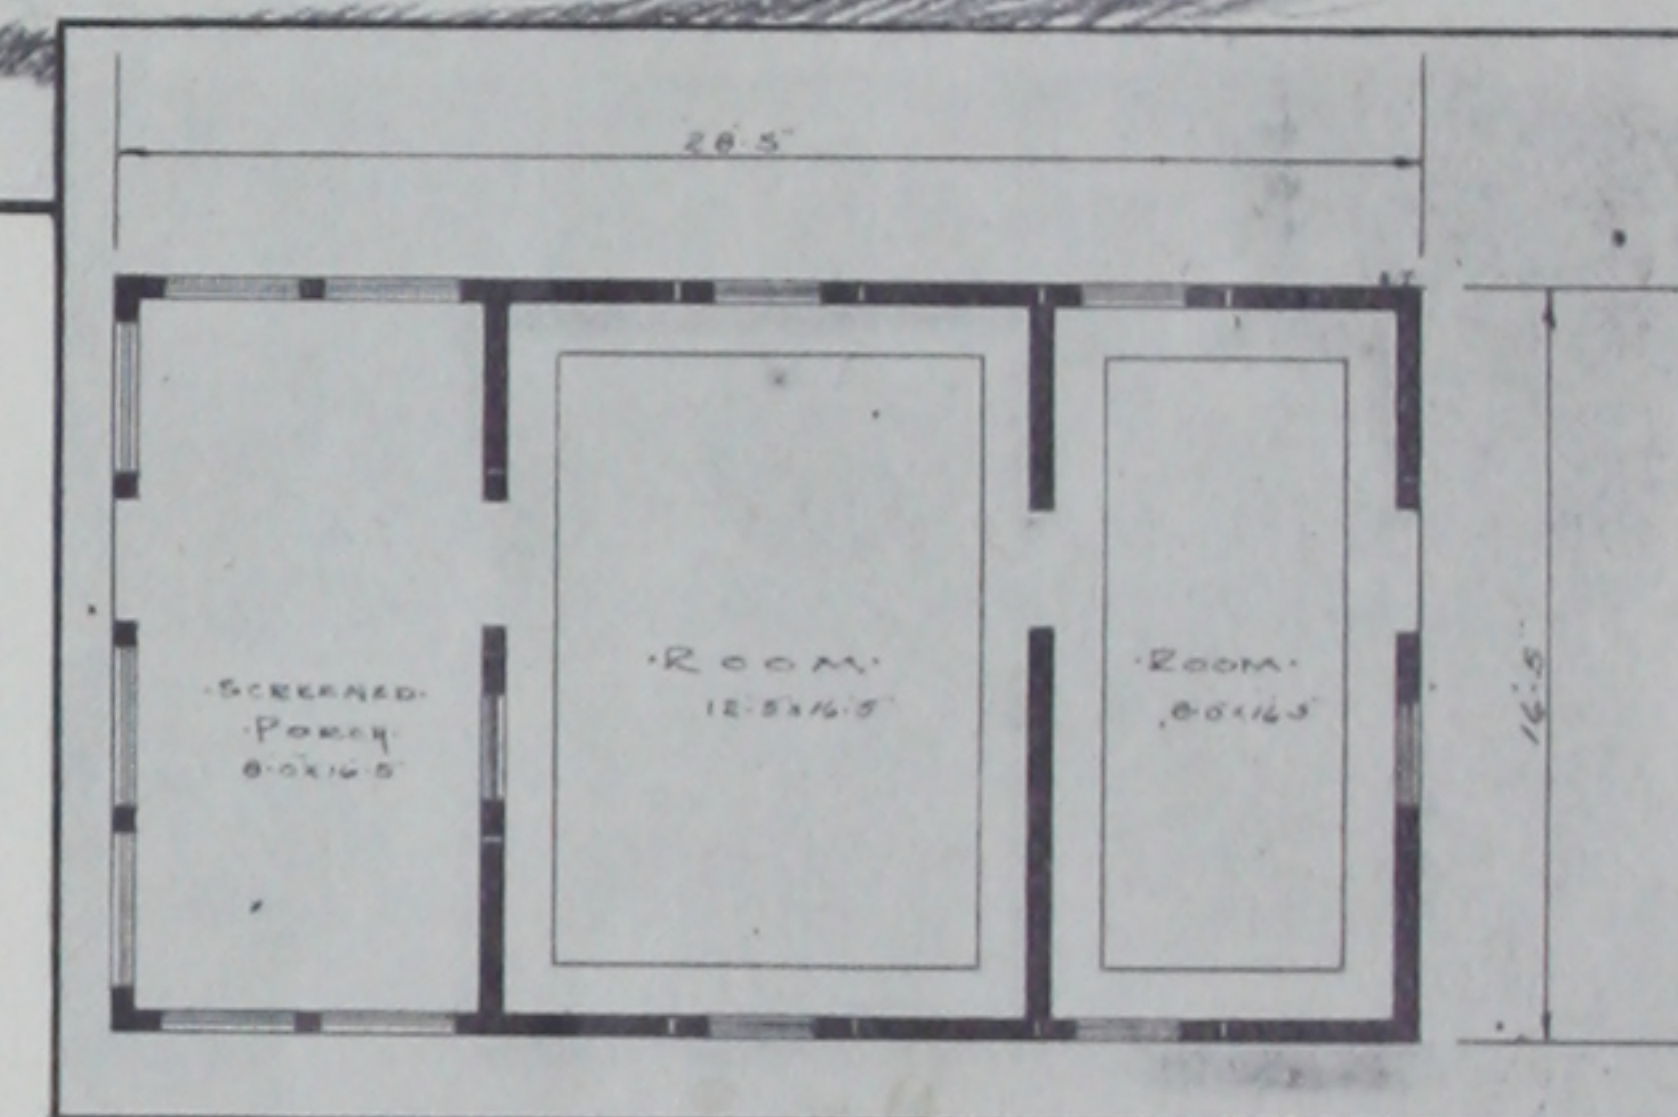

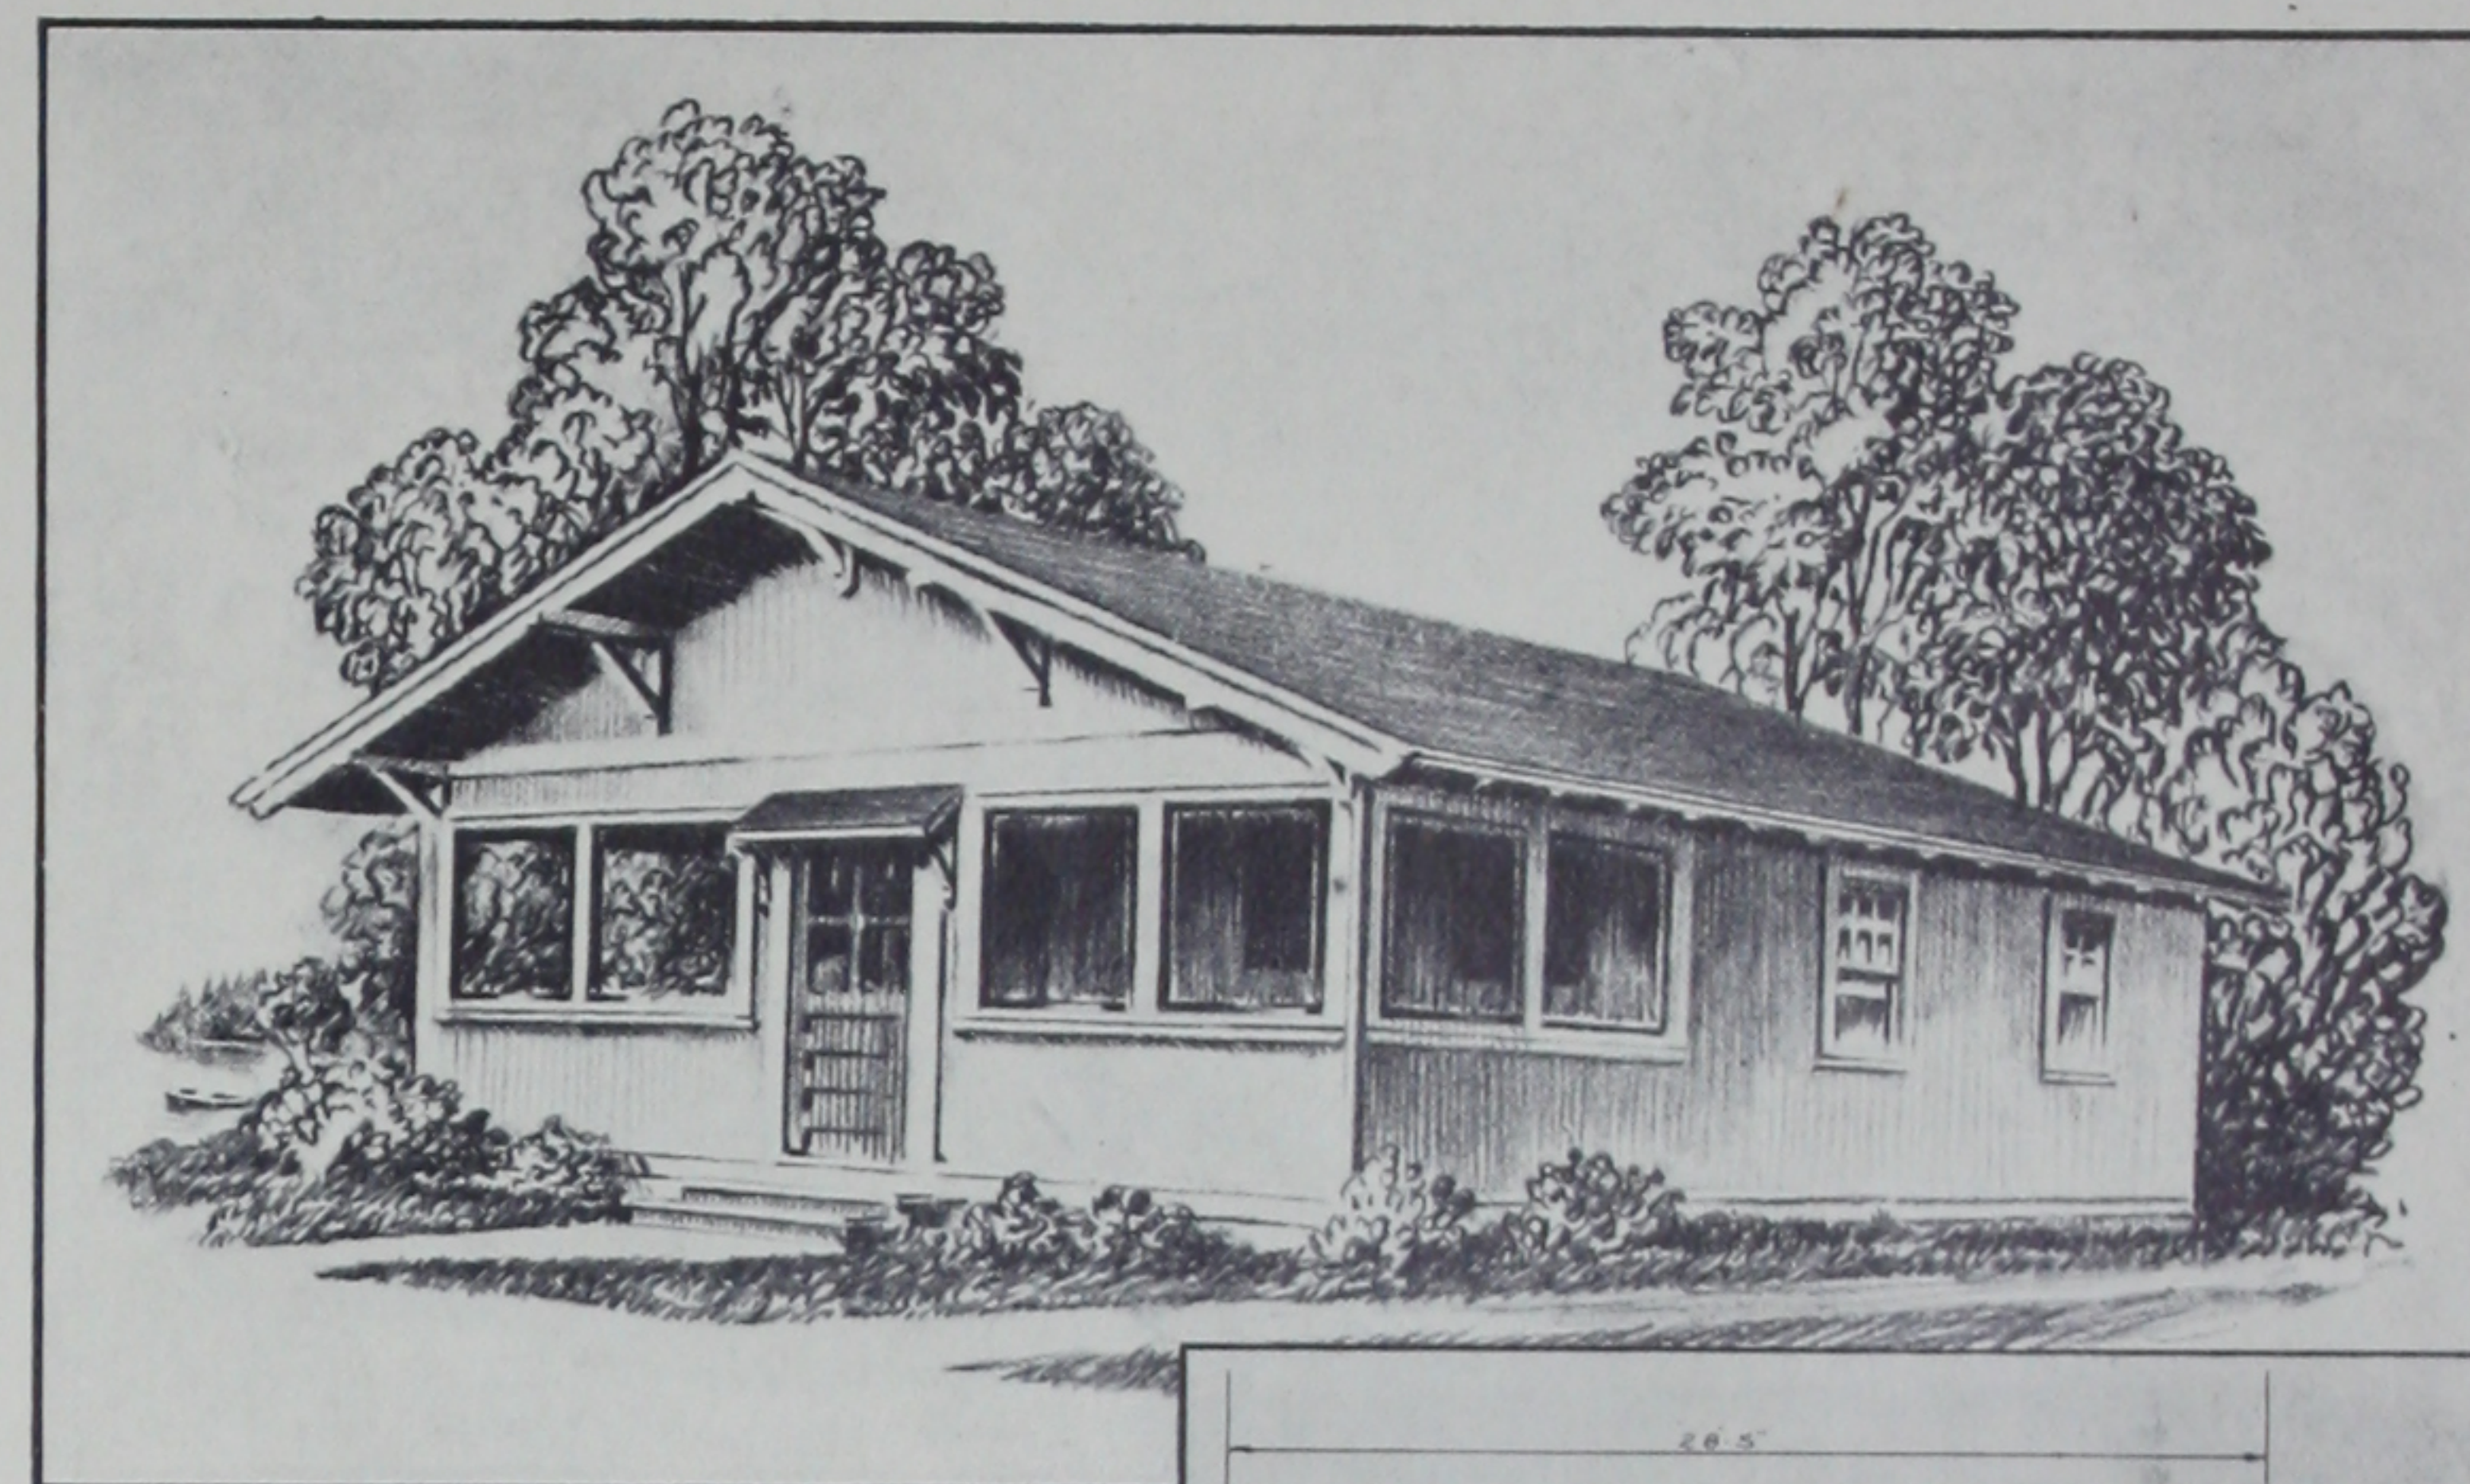

HARRIS BROTHERS COMPANY

The LAKEWOOD

There are three different floor plans for those who are interested in The Lakewood. The broad and spacious porch is the outstanding feature of this series—at a small extra cost the porch can be screened in making it an attractive living porch. The general compactness of the three plans available makes it possible for you to secure an interior arrangement with every comfort and convenience. This design harmoniously blends into any surroundings in which you may intend to build.

The GLENDALE

For real economy the Glendale series of cottages, which consists of four different floor plans is without comparison. These charming cottages have really been planned with the idea of making the porch a room like the rest of the house without losing its open effect. The four floor plans range in size from two rooms and porch to as many as five rooms and porch, with space included for bath or storage and ample closets.

The H. B. SPECIAL

This is an ideal beach bungalow for the summer. The porch is open and the columns can be furnished either round or square. There are two rooms, each 8 foot by 12 foot and an 8 foot by 12 foot porch making the overall size 12 feet 5 inches by 24 feet 5 inches. The front room has four windows, two on the front and one on each side. The back room has a window on each side and one in the rear center. The window boxes on the front and the projecting eaves lend artistic charm to the exterior.

The GABLES

This bungalow is built the same as The H. B. Special and the floor plan, construction details, floor and windows are the same. The roof on this bungalow is our type "B" gable roof and is covered with slate surfaced roll roofing in either red or green. The porch is enclosed with regular unit built screens and a regular screen door is furnished for a porch door. This design allows you the full benefit of three rooms considering the screened porch can be used as sleeping quarters.
